PASSING AWAY OF FRANCIS GLEN CROSSLEY

On Saturday morning, January 1st, at the mystic hour when night yields to day, the patient loving spirit of Francis Glen Crossley winged its flight from earth's dark night to realms of eternal day. Although the watchers at her bedside grieved that one so gentle should linger no longer in the walks of men, they also rejoiced because that lengthened breath is not the sweetest gift God sends his people, but that sometimes the sable pall of death conceals the fairest boon, His love can send.

Her last days were full of intense suffering, long drawn out and death came as a joyous relief.

Emly Frances Glen was born in Georgia, July 11, 1854. She was married to L. V. Crossley in 1877. To this union were born six children. Only two of whom survived, one is Roy Crossley of Ladonia, the other Leslie Crossley of Sublett community near our city. She is also survived by her husband, L. V. Crossley, six grandchildren, Francesbelle Crossley, Robert Crossley of Ladonia, Dorthea, Paul and Myrtle Hood of Arlington, and Fred G. Young of Dallas; one great-grandchild Glen Young, also of Dallas. Mrs. Crossley was united with the Baptist church early in life and lived a true Christian up to the day of her death. She moved here with her family a number of years ago, and has made a host of friends here who proved their friendship by their untiring effort to do something to lessen her suffering, and to help her loved ones bear their sorrow in this their hour of bereavement and by their beautiful floral offerings sent as a token of love.

The family were all here to attend the funeral which was held at the family residence near Arlington at 3 o'clock Saturday evening at 3 o'clock Saturday evening by Rev. S. M. Bennett, a long time friend of the family. Interment followed in Arlington cemetery.

"After the burden and heat of the day

The stary calm of night

After the rough and toilsome way,

Asleep in a robe of white."

A LOVED ONE.

Friday January 21 Funeral Services for W. G. Nunn Held Wednesday

W. G. Nunn, age 74, died at the Southwestern hospital of Fort Worth Tuesday, January 18. Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Nunn was born in Kentucky in 1852 and lived a little more than a month past his 74th birthday. He came to Texas at the age of 21, settling first in Bonham and then soon moving to Ladonia, where he spent practically all of his active business life. He was a merchant of unusual ability and was interested in other business enterprises, farming, oil mills, and banking.

In 1911 he moved to Dallas where he was engaged in business until about five years ago when he retired and moved to Arlington. He lived in East Arlington and was developing one of the finest berry farms and the best strain of Plymouth Rock chickens in the State.

Mr. Nunn was a typical Kentucky gentleman of the old school. He was successful in every business enterprise and had a wide circle of friends throughout the state. Because of his short residence here and because of his business interests elsewhere he was not widely known in Arlington.

Those attending the funeral from out of town were: Will Nunn Graves of Ladonia, Henry Graves of College Station, Mrs. Graves of Dallas, Mr. And Mrs. L. T. W. Reynolds of Weatherford, R. R. McGlasson of Rosebud, J. J. Culberson, Paris, Mrs. Candy and Judge Marian Church of Dallas. Interment was in Arlington cemetery.

Stove Blast Kills A. R. Byrd

TERRIFIC BLAST FATALLY BURNS VICTIM AND SETS FIRE TO HOME

F. J. Letterle, Neighbor, heroically extinguishes Blaze, and Drags Man from Room of Tragedy

A. R. Byrd, 41, farmer of the Harrison community, whose home is on the Randal Mill road, three miles north of town, is dead as the result of burns sustained late Monday afternoon when an oil stove exploded in his room. He succumbed in Dallas at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, where he had been rushed Tuesday night from a doctor's office in Arlington for treatment.

F. J. Letterle, farmer and neighbor to Mr. Byrd, who lives about 300 yards from the victim's place, and was in the back yard of his own home, heard the explosion, and being unable to see the place, ran to the front of his house and saw that the house of Mr. Byrd was on fire. With rare presence of mind he grabbed a small fire extinguisher which was near and ran toward the scene. When Mr. Letterle arrived the front room in which the catastrophe occurred was roaring with flame. With his extinguisher Mr. Letterle entered the room and in less time than it takes to tell had the fire completely extinguished. Darkness had begun to fall and the smoke also made it almost impossible for anything to be distinguished, but Letterle heard some one breathing and groaning, and groping about in the smoke and heat found Byrd lying prostrate and unconscious on the floor in a back room with his clothing burned, in many places, to a crisp. Byrd, evidently, had made a strenuous effort to flee from the house after the explosion, but was prevented from doing so by the night lock being secure, and was overcome while struggling with the hard-fast door. Clothing on Byrd was no longer afire, having been put out by the chemicals. Letterle lifted Byrd up and started for the front door, but before reaching there was compelled to leave him and go out for air. Then again Letterle went in and brought his neighbor out, whom he believed to be dead.

Mr. Brown was passing the house, and not having seen the fire, was hailed by Letterle, who, in his excitement and darkness, had misunderstood the noise of the explosion as the report of a gun, and informed Brown that Byrd had shot himself and set fire to the house, and directed Brown to hurry to Arlington and notify Constable A. D. Austin and Justice of the Peace Farrar to come at once. Upon arriving here and not finding Constable Austin at home, Mrs. Austin phoned to Leslie Harrison and Jess Reynolds, who live in the Harrison community near the scene of the tragedy, who went down to Byrd's home and found that Byrd was still alive and became conscious. In spite of deep burns about his face, shoulders, arms and hands, Byrd was able to walk, with their assistance to a car and was brought back to an Arlington physician's office, from which place he was placed in a Hugh M. Moore ambulance and taken to a Dallas hospital, dying at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. Parents of the deceased reside in Dallas.

A. R. Byrd, 41 years of age, was unmarried, and lived alone, on a farm adjoining the Austin place.

An inspection of the room in which the explosion occurred shows that the heat had become terrific before being put out by Letterle. Wall paper was burned to a crisp, falling like ashes at the touch of the finger; clothing was charred and could be turned to a blackened mass with the pressure of the hand; window panes were blackened and cracked; beds, tables, radio and chairs were upturned by the explosion's force.

The stove which exploded was a small oil heater, with a gas flame attachment. Direct causes leading up to the explosion probably will never be known, as Byrd was alone at the time.

Friday January 28F. J. LETTERLE IS HERO OF DISASTER

Possibly a more unusual sight was never witnessed in the Harrison community than that of Tuesday evening, when F. J. Letterle, with rare presence of mind, in a few seconds after he found his neighbor's home afire, rushed to his aid with a fire extinguisher that was equipped to end the conflagration. Finding the home ablaze, he entered the hottest room, put out the fire and soon was carrying his neighbor to safety. Suffocating smoke and fumes forced him to go back outside, yet he was soon back and brought his neighbor to safety -- but too late to save his life. Mr. Letterle, though modest and unassuming about this feat, should be acclaimed the hero that he is.

Friday January 28EULESS NEWS By Miss Sally Ferris

Uncle Billy Blessing departed this life last Friday morning about two-thirty o'clock. He was sick only a short time. Uncle Billy was one of the oldest citizens of this community. He and his wife lived here a number of years and reared a large family. Mrs. Blessing departed this life several years ago. He was 90 years old, and the father of 12 children of whom eight are living. He had fifty grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren, and seven great-great-grandchildren. He was an active member of the Euless Methodist church, and probably a charter member. He not only helped the church, but was always ready to help any one in the community who needed help. He was a man who was loved by everyone. We hated to hear of his death but glad to say he has lived an honorable life and we feel that he is in a land of joy and peace. It should be a blessing to see God choose a man who is prepared to meet him, instead of taking one who has lived a sinful life. May his going make us realize more fully what we owe to God and man. May we live a life that will help someone, and live more like God wants us to so we will be ready to meet our Savior when he calls us just as Uncle Billy was ready. The funeral was held in the Methodist church and the services were conducted by Rev. P. E. Lancaster, of Springtown, a former pastor of the church. Seven of his children were here for the funeral while the other one, living in Colorado, was snow-bound and could not get here. A host of other relatives and friends were present and a large floral offering was given.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas: An all wise providence saw fit on March the 6th, 1927, to call Brother I. H. Spradling from his happy peaceful home on earth to his heavenly home not made with hands.

Be it resolved: That we, the members of the board of stewards of the M. E. Church, South, have lost a beloved, useful member, one who was always optimistic in every move pertaining to the advancement of his church; one whose place it will be hard to fill. That Brother Spradling passed away in a manner befitting the life he lived, never being helpless, never murmuring but just fell asleep in the arms of Jesus.

Be it further resolved that we extend our sincere sympathy to his lived ones, especially his beloved, faithful wife who will find it so lonely without him. May the heavenly Father comfort her and may she have the same sweet simple faith in His sustaining power that her husband had. May the grandson remember his grandfather's example and mall all the loved ones be found in the path of duty is our prayer.

Also be it resolved that a copy of theses resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the board of stewards and a copy be furnished his loved ones.

Friday March 18EULESS NEWS By Miss Sally Ferris

J. W. (Bud) Huffman and children of Minters Chapel have our greatest sympathy in the loss of their wife and mother, Mrs. Sallie Huffman, who departed this life last Thursday morning. Mrs. Huffman moved to this community from Tennessee when but a young girl. She was then Sallie Cribbs. While living here she was converted and joined the Methodist church to which she was a faithful member until she moved away and then she didn't forget to come back very often and be what help she could to the church. While living at Euless she was married to Mr. J. W. Huffman and later moved to Minters Chapel, where she lived the rest of her life. Mrs. Huffman was a woman who always wanted to help someone. We can think back of so many times she came to people of this community who were sick and in trouble and helped them all she could. And we are glad to know that she is receiving her reward now for the many great deeds she has done. We were sorry to hear of her death, but glad to know that God chose one who was prepared to meet Him. We hope that some sinner will be led to Christ by her going, and that the work she started will never die but live on and on forever.

FATHER OF MONTERROSO BOYS OF GUATEMALA DEAD

Louis and David Monterroso, of South America, who lived with Geo. Lillard for almost a year, learning the methods of agricultural and swine raising as practiced by Americans, have sent this message to The Journal:

"Guatemala City, Guatemala, March 16, 1927. The Arlington Journal, Arlington, Texas. In remembrance of the good friendship between us, I have the sorrow to bring to your knowledge, the death of my dear father, Antonio Monterroso, which took place on Saturday afternoon, March 12. Sincerely yours, Luis and Davis Monterroso, Guatemala City, 9 Ave., Norte No. 30."

These boys have the sympathy of many friends who live in Arlington who learned to know them, not as foreigners, but as two young men, manly, ambitious and strikingly determined to learn the customs of the United States. They returned home in response to a message from their people stating that their father was in ill health. Senor Monterroso was a man of wealth and high standing in his native land. These boys will read this account and we wish to send them greetings from this far-away American town and wish for their return at some future day.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas an all wise providence saw fit to call Mrs. Ethel Collins Freeman from her happy, peaceful home on earth to her heavenly home not made of hands.

Be it resolved that we, the Standard Bearers Wesley class of the Methodist church, have lost one of our most beloved and useful members. She was the essence of charity. Her time, her love was all given cheerfully. The love of God constrained her. We feel that we have never known a woman that was sweeter or purer. Her loyalty and uprightness was an example to us all.

Be it further resolved that we extend our sincere sympathy to her very faithful husband and loved ones. May these same be comforted and possess the same sweet faith and trust that she manifested in her life and death.

Also be it resolved that this be published in our home paper and a copy be sent to her loved ones.

Friday May 6THIS WEEK'S QUESTION By Jack Maxwell

Who owned and operated the first gin in Arlington, and when?

Answer: Exact date unable to secure. However, in 1893 Jim Hammack and B. F. Sawyer operated a gin here. The gin was bought on credit. That year they ginned 9,000 bales. A second crop of cotton came along to bless them and others, with the result the gin was paid for, along with many other obligations hanging over the community. On Christmas Day, according to J. I. Carter, cotton was blooming in the fields in this section.

ORIGIN OF THE WORD "NEWS"

The word news in English originated from various sources. Before the advent of printed newspapers, written messages and dispatches were carried from town to town by "news reporters" riding on horseback. In course of time this system is said to have led up to the practice of posting important news items on boards in public places, such as the local inns, the "town hall," the stations from which stage coaches departed, etc. According to historical notes in old English books, came the time when the written news were pinned or pasted upon the bulletin boards under four different letter-headings as: N. E. W. S. Under the letter N "publick occurences" in the North part of the country were placed. Happenings in the East were reported under the E Column. In the W column news from the West was given, while in the space under the S were placed reports from the South.

Eventually, these four letters of the compass were joined together to form the words NEWS, as it is known today. And, from this word the compound word, Newspaper, was gradually formed.

1 Killed, 4 Injured in Interurban--Auto Wreck at Stop 14

SIX HURLED 50 FEET AS INTERURBAN STRIKES IN CRASH

Miss Francis Evans, 20, of Trinity Heights, Dallas, died Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Baptist Hospital, Fort Worth, from internal injuries received when the 10 o'clock Crimson Limited struck a Ford touring car at the intersection of West Abram and Cooper streets, near Stop 14. Jacob Webb, 40, assistant manager of the U. S. Baking Company, Dallas, who was driving, received internal injuries and a badly wrenched back; Miss Coress Goldsberry, 18, Hope, Ark., suffered serious internal injuries, and Mrs. L. E. Johnston, 76, Dallas, suffered a fractured hip and minor cuts and bruises. Miss Goldsberry's condition is said to be serious. She was visiting with Mrs. M. A. Daniels, of Dallas, who escaped with minor injuries, as did her sister, Miss Louise Strickland, 16, also of Dallas.

"We were nearly on the tracks when I heard the interurban behind us. I screamed at Jake, who was driving the car, and he whirled the car down the tracks. The next thing that I knew we were almost lifted up," Mrs. Lawrence said, in describing the accident. None of the automobile passengers heard the approaching interurban until it was nearly at the crossing, Mrs. Lawrence stated. They had started to the Berachah Home when struck by the west bound limited.

Miss Goldsberry has been spending the summer in Texas and has been preparing to enter Southwestern Junior College at Keen this fall. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goldsberry, had wired that they would be in Dallas Thursday, but were notified by the Baptist Hospital, where the injured were taken, of the serious condition of their daughter. They were taken to Fort Worth in a Hugh N. Moore ambulance after receiving emergency treatment in the office of Dr. McKissick.

Spectators were dumbfounded shortly after the occupants of the car had gone from the scene of the wreck when Constable A. D. Austin discovered under the front seat of the battered car, a human hand, which had been severed at the wrist. At first it was believed to have been severed in the smash-up, but its appearance precluded that conclusion. It was wrapped in a newspaper and taken to the wreck victims for an explanation. The hand, it was discovered, was used in laboratory work, the owner of the car, being a doctor, was taking it along for further experimentation when he had arrived at his destination.

The Ford car was hurled fifty feet and struck the waiting room at Stop 14, smashing timbers and turning it to one side.

J. R. Kennedy witnessed the crash and states that the driver evidently saw the interurban just before being struck, as he turned to the right, but too late to avoid the accident.

Friday September 16DOTS AND DASHES FIRST CLICKED HERE SEPT. 12, 1874

A telegraph system between Ft. Worth and Dallas, 53 years ago last Monday clicked off the first message in dots and dashes ever sent from Ft. Worth.

It was on that day Sept. 12, 1874, that W. P. Burts, then mayor of Ft. Worth, sent a message to the mayor of Dallas over the town's first telegraph wire. Max Elser, now an oil operator at Cisco and for many years a prominent business man of Ft. Worth, and C. L. Frost, later general superintendent of the Fort Worth & Denver, built the first system into Ft. Worth and Elser sent the first message.

The 10-word message to Dallas at that time drew a 50 cents rate. All messages sent from Fort Worth at that time made connections with the outside lines at Dallas and carried in addition to the regular toll the 50-cent charge between the two cities. The telegraph wire as an independent venture antedated the railroad and the opening of Western Union offices into Ft. Worth by two years. The Texas & Pacific Line made its entry in 1876, the same year in which Western Union opened a one-operator, one messenger office in Fort Worth.

When Murnice read of the incident he rushed home to let them know he was not killed, which was a great relief to his folks.

Friday September 16"THAT SETTLES IT"

Absolute knowledge have I none,
But my aunt's washerwoman's son,

Heard a policeman on his beat,
Say to a laborer on the street,
Hand written in the finest Greek.
From a Chinese coolie in Timbuctoo,
Who said that a son in Cuba knew,
Of a colored gent in a Texas town,
Who got it right from a circus clown,
That a man in Klondike got the news,
From a gang of smooth American Jews,
About some fellow in Borneo,
Who knew a man who claimed to know,
A hermit who lived beside a lake,
Whose mother-in-law will undertake,
To prove a friend's sister's niece,
Has stated in a nicely written piece,
That she has a son who knows about,
The date the new Ford Car comes out.

Friday September 23 MY FIRST LOVE AFFAIR

I was coming 17 when love first shot its arrow into my gizzard. I had seen my then future wife but twice, but I knew then and there that I would die if I did not marry her at once.

As for me, I was not a thing of beauty, nor a joy forever; I was not acquainted with store-bought clothes. I had a jeans coat and a pair of jean breeches, and a pretty little striped calico shirt. I wore a No. 8 shoe on my right foot, but it took a No. 9 for my left. I was then slightly pigeon toed, and was somewhat stooped from plowing a fast mule.

As to her, she was a bunch of dewdrops, a plate of sunshine, a vase of lilies, and her lips looked like rose buds, and her stockings of tan radiated real beauty, and displayed real ???, but then it took an accident or a calamity to see above a girls ankles. I fell for her hard. She was buxom, and wore No. 7 shoes, but feet never stood in anybody's way then when love was knocking at the door.

Well, she told me I could come to see her on Saturday night. I was so happy I thought I'd die. It seemed three weeks from Friday afternoon 'till Saturday night. I begun to doll up about 3 p. m. I first made a trip to the creek. I washed all over with lye soap. My skin shone like a moonbeam, and my whole body was red but clean.

Up to that time I had never been introduced to underwear. In fact, none of our family was ever burdened with any excess of clothes. So I got a pair of sister's old black stockings and cut the feet out of them and put them on. I blacked my shoes with soot and shined them with tallow. I got my daddy's razor and scraped my face good, but did not dull it any as my beard was soft and tender, all three of them.

I then got some lard and plastered my hair to my head so tight that I had to pry it loose next morning with a case knife. I found a little bit of lily white and I rubbed that on my cheeks with a little red calico rag. Man, that pinkness brought out undiscovered beauty. My breeches struck me about 4 inches above my brogans. My coat fitted me so tight I looked like a bologna sausage.

My next job was getting out of the house without any of my brothers or sisters seeing me. I had never tried to dress up before, and if they had seen me life would not have been worth a six-pence.

I began to get excited about that time. I tried to think what I would say to my sweetheart. I walked a while and then ran a while, and I studied up several nice things to say—like this: I am so glad to see you, you, you are so pretty, I am glad I met you. I seen you yesterday but you never seen me ansoforth.

But on I went. I got there. I walked up the steps. The thermometer was below freezing, but I was above melting. Never sweated so in my life. My mouth was dry, my breath was short, my tongue was glued to my throat, my stomach hurt, and my shoes began to pinch my toes.

The old man came to the door. I said, "Is she here?" He said, "H--- no brat—do your maw know where you air tonight? Daughter's gone to a party if you happen to be looking for her." Slam went the door. I went home with a broken-heart, and never have had any use for that man or woman since. — Gee McGee.

Friday September 30 Came to Arlington Fifty Years Ago

Mrs. F. V. Lawrence, who claims to have been the oldest living resident in the original city limits of Arlington, came to Arlington in November, 1876. When Mrs. Lawrence came here there was only one store and that was owned and run by Jim Ditto. The store was located on the corner of what is now known as Abrams and Center Streets. The railroad had just been completed through here in July of that year and the depot was housed in a tent.

Her husband, F. V. Lawrence, made the first postoffice boxes to be installed in Arlington. They were placed in the store run by Mr. Ditto and here the people came and received their mail. Later a blacksmith shop was located here. It was owned and run by Geo. Lampe. Mrs. Lawrence says that the water supply of the town was very short. A well, 80 feet deep, was drilled almost exactly where Abram Street and Center Street intersect but there was never a sufficient water supply for the town. This shows the development of the town compared to present day conditions of water supply.

Mrs. Margaret Ramsey is perhaps the oldest living resident of the Arlington community. Mrs. Ramsey lived just west of the city limits of Arlington for several years then moved to town. Mrs. Lawrence having preceded her several years. The north limits of the city at that time only extended to what is now Mrs. Lawrence's home at 402 South Center Street.

(picture MRS. WOOD COLLINS)

Mrs. Wood Collins, better known as "Granny Collins," is one of Arlington's oldest, most loved and respected citizens. Mrs. Collins celebrated her 86th birthday on July 31.

Mrs. Collins and her family moved to Arlington in 1880. Her husband, Wood Collins, opened the first mercantile business in Arlington. Mrs. Collins says: "There really wasn't much to Arlington when I came here forty-six years ago."

Mrs. Collins is the mother of 17 children, five of whom are still living. They are Mrs. Joe Elliott, Mrs. Will Moore, Mrs. S. F. Yates, Mrs. Geo Luttrell and Miss Fannie Collins. She has 33 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

Friday September 30 Came to Arlington Fifty Years Ago
(picture UNCLE JOHNNIE FORT)

J. S. Fort, affectionately known as "Uncle Johnnie," has watched the growth of Arlington since 1876 from a one-store village to its present proportions.

Mr. Fort came to Texas with his father and sister from Kentucky in 1876. They stopped in Sherman, Texas, for about three weeks then came on to Arlington where he has since made his home.

Uncle Johnnie says that the country was very thinly settled but he stayed with it anyway. His father was in ill health and died here in 1898. Mr. Fort married soon after and moved to the home where he is now living.

Mr. Fort has been engaged in farming most of the time since coming here. Despite the fact that he is now 93 years of age, he is hale and hearty and expects many more great things for this country.

HAYTER POSTOFFICE WAS LOCATED IN STORE OF UNCLE JIMMIE DITTO

(picture J. I. CARTER)

Who First Served as Postmaster in Arlington in 1897.

By J. I. Carter, Postmaster, Arlington, Texas.

Arlington's first postoffice was established in 1875, and was not known as Arlington, but was named Hayter. At that time the present site of this city was yet in the woods and not laid off. The Postmaster at that time was Uncle Jimmie Ditto, who kept the postoffice in his store about one-half mile East of the present town on the old Dallas and Fort Worth road. In 1876 the Texas and Pacific railway laid off the town and sold the first lots. Uncle Jimmie Ditto purchased lots where Knapp's barber shop and the building just North are now located. He moved his store to his new building, bringing the postoffice.

The town when first laid off, was named "Johnson" by the railroad company, and when the Postmaster asked the Department to change the name from Hayter to Johnson, he was informed that "Johnson Station" postoffice was three miles South and that he would have to select some other name.

Web Ditto Names Town

At the suggestion of Web Ditto, the name of "Arlington" was sent in and accepted by the Postoffice Department. Immediately the railroad company accepted the name and changed the name of the townsite from Johnson to Arlington. This is the origin of the name of the City of Arlington.

After moving into the new building, Uncle Jimmie Ditto continued as Postmaster until 1881, keeping the office in his store and most of the work of caring for the postoffice was done by his son, Web Ditto, who is one of our earliest and most respected citizens.

In 1881 Moses Bledsoe was named postmaster, and continued so till 1889, when J. W. Hammock was named as Postmaster and continued as such till 1893 when B. A. Mathers was named Postmaster. Mr. Mathers served until 1897, when J. I. Carter was named as postmaster, serving until 1913, when P. B. McNatt was named, and served until 1922, when J. I. Carter again was appointed and at this writing is serving in that capacity.

Growth Rapid in Recent Years

Arlington at its inception was very small and, while the postoffice performed its functions in full, for several years there was but little to do; but from the beginning to the present time the town has steadily grown and the postoffice has grown with it.

In 1898 the office was raised from fourth class to third or Presidential class, remaining in class three till 1919, when it was advanced to second class, taking its place among what is known as classified offices; that is, the employees placed under Civil Service, and no longer subject to removal because of a change of national administration.

As stated, the office went into the second class in 1919, taking it forty-five years to reach that growth, and in the eight years past the receipts of the office have more than doubled, showing more growth during these recent years than in the preceding forty-five years.

At the present the office force consists of Postmaster, three clerks, two substitute clerks, two city carriers, one substitute carrier, six rural route carriers and three substitute rural route carriers.

Hamilton, former chief of police of Fort Worth and county detective, who made many friends in Arlington while a candidate for sheriff last year, died Thursday at 2:45 a. m. in the home of his brother, D. H. Hamilton, 4061 Bunting Ave., Fort Worth, as the result of a stroke of paralysis suffered three weeks ago. Friday October 7 THE JOURNAL OFFICE IN THE EARLY DAYS

Twenty-eight years ago when Geo. Byus set up a little print shop in a wooden shack in a side street in Arlington, he had nothing in mind so much as to find something to do that would enable him to live in Arlington. He had been working as a printer in an office whose editor had been all but made to leave town because of a fiery editorial a year previous and whose publication had been discontinued. Conditions in this little shop were no doubt not unlike those found in a hundred and one other small places in the small pioneer towns of Texas. An old Washington hand press was the big and valuable piece of machinery which carried the bulk of the ever present mortgage assisted by a "stick" of type and a "foot-power" job press. These made up the office.

However ludicrous this may now seem, it was parallel, perhaps, to conditions as seen on the street, with styles of times passing in review, down a plank sidewalk (if there were a sidewalk), ladies with large hats and flowing veils, and skirts that would make a dozen nowadays. Today, as these persons of certain age view the attire of the modern young lady (meaning those young in appearance and dress, and not necessarily young in age) and remember the dress and rather modest bearing of the girls of years ago, they shake their heads, and wonder what style next. Yet these ladies of years gone by found their way as today, to the printing office and reported their social activities and "local news" items for the Journal. They knew that it took quite a lot of hard work and time to set up the type by hand and get out the paper, but what did they care for that if they could get in their latest party story. Then the linotype machine came in and revolutionized the country print shop, doing the work of six men efficiently and well, and the dingy office was able soon to step out in front when it came to community progress. The paper was enlarged, work was speeded up and news gathering soon became an art.

Styles in printing change, like styles in dress. Some years ago both dress and printing forgot about simplicity, and both wandered far afield, with the result that one now looks upon examples of both as "frights." Going back to a still earlier period, one encounters simplicity, dignity, and attractiveness. Printing, like styles, is returning to the fold of true art.

Ornaments, flowery letters, scroll effects, with wooden etchings are being displaced by plain lettering, easily read, white space and brevity. New type, new machinery, rules and ink are now considered highly important in printing, with hundreds of different grades and finishes in paper from which the customer may select. Printing, if properly carried on today, is one of the outstanding arts, with heavy capital investment, and a modern, well equipped printing office is one of the most beneficial assets possessed by any community.

Friday October 28 ACCOUNT OF DEATH OF SISTER OF REV. STATHAM

Mrs. Addie Spears of Lufkin, Texas, 82 years of age, died in the city Sunday, Oct. 23. She was a sister of our fellow townsman, Rev. C. E. Statham. The following account of Mrs. Spears' death appeared in the Lufkin Daily News Monday, Oct 24:

"The friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Addie Spears, one of the oldest citizens of the county, will be grieved to learn of her death on Sunday morning this week at two o'clock, the deceased having arrived at the ripe old age of 82 years before being called to answer the last summons. She had been in bad health for some time, being stricken with high blood pressure and paralysis, though her death was rather unexpected since on last Sunday she was cheerful and seemed to be better in every way.

"The deceased had been a resident of Angelina county for the past 65 years, moving here from Alabama, where she was born and spent her girlhood days and being united with her husband, who survives at the age of 88 years, during the Civil War. As a result of this union there were born seven children, five boys and two girls, six of whom survive as follows: Dr. C. W., John and Sidney, all of Kaufman county; Fred of Lufkin; and Mesdames C. H. Martin and P. M. Allbritton also of Lufkin. Four sisters also survive as follows: Mesdames Donnie Deal, Mat Wiley, Emma Stinson and Johnnie McKennon; and a brother, C. E. Statham of Arlington, a superannuated Methodist preacher.

"The deceased was a most lovable character, a consistent member of the Christian church since girlhood, and enjoyed the love and esteem of every community in which she has resided during her residence of over 65 years in Angelina county. She and her husband, who survives her, have been among the pioneers in the development of our county, in the taking of a decided stand for all things worthwhile, and in the rearing of a family of splendid boys and girls who are a credit to the home where a proper Christian influence and a proper training were always outstanding features of this household.

"Funeral services were held this morning at 10 o'clock at 522 Charlton street, with Rev. J. N. Wooten in charge, the interment being at the family burial lot in Old Homer."

Friday October 28MRS. KATE BROWN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Kate C. Brown, wife of Dr. J. Duff Brown, Jr. of Arlington, died at the family home Saturday, October 22. Mrs. Brown was born at Franklin, Williamson county, Tennessee, a little more than seventy years ago, and was married to Dr. J. Duff Brown, Jr. February 15. 1877, at Franklin. Mrs. Brown was the mother of six children, three girls and three boys. All of the girls and one of the boys died in early infancy. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Major Lindsley M. Brown, and Jack Duff Brown of Arlington, and one adopted daughter, Mrs. Annie L. Clinton, of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Funeral services were held in Arlington at the Methodist church, of which she was a member, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and was participated in by Rev. W. G. Bailey, pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. C. E. Statham, superannuated Methodist minister, Rev. S. M. Bennett, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. D. C. Williams, pastor of the Arlington Baptist church.

Doctor and Mrs. Brown, immediately after their marriage, moved to Oakland, Colorado county, Texas, where the Doctor spent his boyhood days. He later moved to Llano, Texas, where he lived for ten years and practiced medicine as a partner of his father, who was a physician there. Mrs. Brown's body was taken to Llano for burial in the family lot, beside the body of many relatives gone on before, and her little daughters.

Mrs. Brown was a noted musician, being the composer of "Sigsbee Maine March," which she played for the soldiers of two wars, the Spanish American and last World's War, when they were having final services before departing for the battlefields. It has been given national prominence and is played on noted occasions by Sousa's and the United States bands. She was honor graduate of Ward's Seminary, which is now Ward's Bellmont of Nashville, Tennessee, and possessed a polished education.

Mrs. Brown was a devout Christian. She lived her religion. For the greater part of her life she was an invalid, and for months confined to her bed, yet during her long life of suffering she never murmured. She did not complain and become impatient with her pains, but always said, "Not my will but God's be done." To all who knew her she was such an inspiration for she was such a motherly, sweet, sympathizing character. She wanted people to bring their burdens to her, that she might help them see the sunny side of life, and not the gloom. The pastors tried to say words of comfort to those left behind and her hundreds of friends but so great was their grief it was between tears that they told of her many lovable deeds. The actual end of Mrs. Brown's life came suddenly, as she was stricken with paralysis and did not speak during the last three weeks of her illness, but one of her last acts was to take a poor blind man into her dining room, give him dinner, then take up a collection among her neighbors which she gave to him as she sent him on his way rejoicing. Mrs. Brown left a marked Bible of comforting passages which she said she believed from cover to cover, without reservation.

Mrs. Brown was devoted to her husband and boys. Dr. Brown, due to his wife's constant sickness, moved every few years in hope of finding a climate that would agree with her, and until the last insisted on providing for her needs, personally, even though there were two trained nurses in the room. Their neighbors say that they never stopped living their "honey-moon days." Rev. Mr. Statham said during his remarks that during the forty years that he had known Doctor and Mrs. Brown his fondest recollections were of the family prayers and services he had held in their home and of Mrs. Brown's unflinching faith in her Savior, and that the Doctor's tender care of his wife had been such as to immortalize him among all mankind. Rev. Mr. Bennett, in connection with his remarks read a poem, "Mother's Hands," and spoke of how touched he was as he often saw her sons stand by their mother's bed and kiss her frail hand, and that she told him many times that neither of her sons had ever given her one moments trouble.

The earth has lost a sweet, beloved Christian character, one who never spoke unless she could say something kind. Heaven has become richer, and surely the perfume that rose from the altar banked with flowers was a comfort to her loved ones.

The active pallbearers in Arlington were Dr. J. G. Kearby, R. T. McCarter, Dr. H. M. Kearby, J. M. Houston, Benton Collins, and Newt Lyons.

The honorary pallbearers, S. A. Scott, James Ditto, C. B. Berry, Dr. W. H. Davis, Dr. F. L. Harvey, R. W. Reynolds, Oscar M. Harrell, Frank McKnight, Judson B. Perry, Franklin L. Perry, J. D. Samuels, Adrian Bonquist, Judge J. P. Small, Judge R. E. L. Roy, Judge T. H. Conner, Judge James E. Mercer, Louis Richter, John H. Reagan, John Tarleton, and John M. Moore, all of Fort Worth.

Friday November 11 Arlington May be Official Air Port Center
Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and South Texas Points Urge Landing Field Between Fort Worth and Dallas

Arlington is ideally located and has an excellent opportunity of being designated as one of the big transcontinental airports of the South. The National Air Transport Corporation, Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston and all leading South Texas points served by mail and commercial planes have agreed that a landing field midway between Fort Worth and Dallas is imperative to the public good and that Arlington is the logical location for this gigantic air field. These were statements made by C. A. Winder, Supervisor of Public Utilities of Fort Worth, before a representative group of Arlington business men Tuesday afternoon gathered in called meeting at the City Hall, with Mayor W. G. Hiett presiding. Talks were made by Mr. Winder of Fort Worth, A. B. Spencer, secretary of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Chauncy Weiler of Handley, J. I. Carter, Postmaster of this city and others.

Mr. Winder, who with Mayor Meacham of Fort Worth, has done much toward building Fort Worth's municipal airport, stated that the United States Government is soon to designate a permanent landing field which will serve for its mail planes and commercial aviation for long and short distances. At the present time, these planes are being forced to land in Fort Worth at Meacham field and then fly to Love field at Dallas. Northern Texas, says Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Erwin Glover, should be served by one field necessitating, of course, only one landing. The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Public Utilities Corporations, Civic organizations, etc, have for a long time endeavored to secure this designation for their city and Dallas, with Love Field, has made and is continuing to make efforts to get this coveted honor. Due to suggestions coming from the Government, the National Air Transport Corporation, Mexico City, and large South Texas points and in deference to the public good, Fort Worth has waived this ambition and so has become an enthusiastic booster for a mid-way point between their city and Dallas, and declare Arlington is unquestionably the place. Dallas is yet contending that Love Field be the official landing field, but inasmuch as all air mail and express have to be carried nine miles through congested traffic to reach rail transportation facilities, the long distance from Fort Worth, public sentiment and many other reasons, it is not believed Dallas will object to this mid-way port being located at Arlington. Planes, both air mail and commercial, now flying from New York, Chicago, Kansas City and practically all Eastern and Western points along the transcontinental route are forced to make an expensive and time-losing jog from Fort Worth to Dallas. One field at Arlington would serve the two cities and save this hazard, time and expense. The National Air Transport Co., who handle the United States air mails estimate that they would save $15.00 per day by this change.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to formulate plans whereby a site may be secured either by lease or purchase for a landing field. Several sites were looked over by a number of citizens before the meeting and several ideal places are available. The Fort Worth men said that an airship was sent out here several days ago to look over available landing places. It was moved and seconded that a committee be appointed by Mayor Hiett to take this matter up with the Government and do anything that needs to be done toward getting this site and airport designation. This committee if known as the Arlington Airport Committee and is as follows: J. I. Carter, chairman; J. S. Perry, secretary; J. R. Wright, Web Rose, Zac Slaughter. Honorary members are A. B. Spencer, C. A. Winder and Chauncy Weller.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the meeting that his gigantic airport, if brought to Arlington, would be the biggest thing that ever happened to one city. In a few years time it would see this city known far and wide as the air center of North Texas with hundreds and possibly thousands of ships landing here daily. Aviation today is where the railroads were in 1876, the year the T. & P. was built West, and there is no question but that development is going forward far faster than the average man realizes.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF T. B. MATLOCK

The passing of T. B. Matlock, Sr., October 28, 1927, deprives this community of one of its most familiar and best known citizens.

His parents, Thomas Benton and Mariam Dixon Matlock, settled at the now old home place, one and one-half miles south of Johnson Station, in September 1867, moving here from Old Jacksonville, Texas. He taught school at Johnson Station until Governor Davis issued his proclamation, requiring all teachers to take an oath to receive and teach all children without regard to color, who presented themselves at school. He refused to take the oath so gave up teaching. He devoted the remainder of his life to stock raising and farming.

T. B. (Benton) Matlock was about two years old when his parents settled at the old home place near Johnson Station, where he was reared, lived and died. In his passing this community has lost an honored citizen. He was industrious, honest and sympathetic in all his dealings. He took a deep interest in helpful developments, especially education. His life was an open book. His home, at all times, was open to the young people, he enjoyed their company and was always their friend. The Matlock home was often filled with happy visitors and he enjoyed their company as much as they enjoyed the pleasures of his home. He was a real friend, frank, sincere and honest in all his dealing with mankind.

Although in failing health for about two years, he bore his affliction with courage commensurate with his nature. He had every attention that medical skill could afford and many earnest prayers were offered in his behalf but the grim monster, Death, claimed him Friday, October 28, 1927 at 12:30. His funeral was held at the Arlington Presbyterian Church, Sunday, Oct. 30th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The church was crowded to its capacity and the floral offerings were beautiful and lavishly bestowed, all of which bespoke louder than words of the love and esteem in which he was held by his many friends.

Immediately after the funeral his body was laid to rest in the Arlington cemetery, to await the Resurrection morn. One of the remarkable providences in the death and burial of Mr. Matlock was that his wife, ten children, one sister and four brothers were all on their way or at his bedside when the end came. His death, also, was really unexpected to his physician and to his friends.

Hundreds mingled their tears with the loved ones in the great loss of this departed friend, Mr. T. B. Matlock.

"It may be so - Plato, thou reasonest well! -
Else why this pleasing hope, this fond desire,
This longing for immortality?
Or whence this secret dread, and inward horror,
Of falling into naught?
Why shrinks the soul,
Back on herself and startles at destruction?
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us;
'Til heaven itself that points out the hereafter
And intimates Eternity to man."

Friday December 30LITTLE HOWARD ROGERS STRAYS FROM HOME

Howard Rodgers, the little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, wandered away from home last Wednesday morning with his little dog. When his mother went to look for him in the yard where he was last seen playing, she could not find him. He was not at any of the neighbors houses so they all joined in a search for him. Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers came to school and spread the news and took his big brother, Jack, Curtis Murr and Stanley Rowden. They searched the woods and called the dog and finally succeeded in getting the dog to come to them, but it immediately ran in the opposite direction, so the boys followed the dog and found the baby crying. He had been gone about four hours when they found him. He told the boys he had taken his dog for an o'possum hunt.
