Friday February 10 DUMPING GROUND IS CITY'S PROBLEM

The City of Arlington has no suitable place for dumping its trash, according to a report to the Commission at its regular session Tuesday afternoon. Heretofore trash has been dumped along the highways in ditches that needed to be filled, but, it seems, these places have been filled, and the problem is to find something suitable that would serve as a permanent place, preferably owned by the City. In fact it is obviously impossible to find any individual who would allow refuse to be dumped on his property and the only alternative is for the city to acquire several acres of land for this purpose. No action was taken but this seemed to be the opinion of those present.

Friday March 23 VETERAN STREET CAR MAN DROVE MULES IN MANY TEXAS CITIES

Among the old-timers who have spent their lives in the transportation industry in Texas A. J. Madden, 62, operator on the Arlington Heights line of the Northern Texas Traction Company at Fort Worth, had the distinction of being one of the few street car men whose service dates from the mule car days.

Jack Madden, as he is better known, drove a mule car for the Fort Worth Street Railway back in 1890. He drove his first mule cars in San Antonio in 1889, and subsequently worked such cars in Waco, Galveston and Houston. He remembers the routes the old cars followed in the various cities and is perhaps the best posted man in Texas on the history of electric railways from a personal experience standpoint.

"Every line had about three spans of mules," Madden said. "When one span would get tired we'd change and use another for awhile. We used to stick as close to schedule as we could but we couldn't always strike a switch at the right time and when one car passed a switch and met another we didn't have to back up. We'd just throw our cars off the track and pass and go on as if nothing had happened.

"Mules got so they knew pretty near as much about running the cars as some of the drivers and conductors. If one of 'em, for instance, saw a woman standing by the track they'd begin to slow up right now and I'd never have to draw a rein on them."

Friday March 23 "SKEET" PALMER TELLS OF THRILLS OF OUTLAW DAYS IN EARLY TEXAS

W. K. "Skeet" Palmer operates a hamburger and peanut stand at the corner of Abram and Center streets, in the Arlington Grocery and Market.

It is a calm and docile trade—more of a pastime, you might say—and therefore it's a far cry from Skeet's earlier work in life. For Skeet came to Texas in 1881, at about the time of O. Henry, and he can recall some episodes that put piracy to shame.

"In them days," Skeet remarked not very long ago, "everybody carried a gun—a six shooter. Did it for protection."

Wild Texas is tranquilized now, and we do not pack six guns on our hips for social standing or to demand our honor and rights from others. Texas is civilized—brought up to date. Even Easterners do not question—coolly or otherwise—of the visiting Texan: "Oh yes; why, you're from woolly Texas, aren't you? What range do you live on?"

But, whether Texas is calm now or not, it was once the Mecca of the ruffianship of the earth, and Skeet takes a delight in telling about it.

"I come to Texas," he said, "along about '81. Left Kentucky on the old L. & N., and came into Texas on the T. & P. and the Cotton Belt—that's all that ran in there then.

"The Cotton Belt used to run a train from Sherman to a town about 50 miles away. I was working in the yards then, and I was on the extra board, so I used to pull that train sometimes."

The extra board, as one must know, is a list of engineers and firemen for special runs, or who will work in case the regular crews are not on duty.

"They took that train off after a while," resumed Skeet, "and ran a motor car over the track, but they've got the train back on now, I think. In them days engines weren't no bigger than coffee pots; they had big, tall stacks like a flashlight up-ended, and burned wood.

"Actually, those old engines were no bigger than the tenders on one of the modern 900 type that the T. & P. runs through Arlington.

"When I first come to Texas I worked nights in a gamblin' house," said Skeet; "and I always made more money then than I do now. Used to be common to make $15 to $20 a night, just runnin' notes for the gamblers.

"There was a feller called Daniels—practically built Sherman, that lived a few miles outside town. He was an uncle of the James boys—Frank and Jesse. I seen them many a time, ridin' through the town, loafin' in it."

The James boys, you will remember, were perhaps the most romantic bandits of pioneer America. Some of their exploits are now historical.

"I was in town one day when somebody robbed the bank. They sure robbed it, too," chuckled Skeet; "blew the safe door as far as from here to the ice box." He pointed out a thirty foot distance.

"Everybody thought it was Frank and Jesse, but old Daniels came in and told the sheriff he knew otherwise. Frank and Jesse had been at his house all night.

"Wal, now maybe you don't know, fer sure," said the sheriff; "they might o' slipped out during the night and done the trick." "Sheriff," Daniels replied, "I'm sure those boys didn't do it. Give 'em a chance, and they'll prove it."

As it happened, though, the Sheriff had already taken measures to apprehend the James boys. But when he went to get them, they were gone. Later he received a note from them, which said: "We can prove we didn't do the trick. If you'll go up Indian Creek, you'll find six men chained to some trees and all the money with them. Don't get too handy with your guns, though, for we'll be right around."

The sheriff proceeded to the spot, and found the six bandits, with the money, just as the James' boys had predicted.

"I saw the six Dire boys there, too," added Skeet. "They, like the James boys, were driven to do what they did. Later they killed an officer and his son, and the mob strung three of them up, while two others were sent to the pen. They didn't serve their terms, I think, and they came back and made men out of themselves."

Skeet switched his locale to New Mexico.

"I was in Roswell," he began, "the day the famous outlaw, Kit Carson, was killed. How did he get it? Well, old 'One Wing' Garrett, Sheriff at Roswell, brought him in one day, and chained him down to a stake in the town. They didn't have jails in those days, you know. Garrett left for a while, and had three deputies guarding Carson. He gave them strict orders not to let Carson loose, but the outlaw argued them into it.

"The minute he got loose, he grabbed a gun, shot and killed two of the deputies, and escaped from Roswell with two Mexicans. When Garrett came back, he swore to get Carson, and about a week later, while on his trail, met a Mexican girl, who told him in Spanish that she had noticed two Mexicans and a white man going towards a little cabin some piece off. Garrett followed, and came upon them about sundown. Just before it got dark, one of the Mexicans left the hut to get water, and Garrett crept towards the cabin. He knew Carson was in there, because Carson's horse was tied outside.

"It was dark inside, and when Garrett entered the doorway, he spoke in Mexican. Both Carson and the other answered, and as they did, Garrett fired at each voice. He killed them both, and captured the other Mexican when he came back to the hut. Loaded Kit's body on his horse, and took him back to Roswell.

"I also saw W. W. Cody," remarked Skeet.

W. W. Cody's more well known name was Buffalo Bill, the great friend of the Indians, who is buried atop a big hill in Colorado. There is a wonderful scenery, and one can look from the memorial down into a great green and brown valley, splendid and beautiful.

Talking to Skeet is very interesting; some day when you're not busy you might go down and see him and try it.

Our Citizen, W. R. Milton

Friends, it is sad to write of one whom you knew and appreciated. One even, whose faults you can overlook and think of the greater, nobler element in his character. Now striking the words—"God looketh on the heart." You know that we are not readers of the heart. We may be so far wrong that we dare not venture to read what is concealed in the heart of any man. William Robertson Milton has lived and has passed to that land toward which you and I are traveling.

No man was more conscious of life and its responsibilities than Milton. If a man is to be judged by his conversation then he was thoroughly conscious of the fact that he was in a world where men are needed and that he had to meet a future. He believed in the Deity of Jesus. His whole soul and body were thrown against anything that smacked of heresy. He often said—"I am not an example by any means but I believe in standing for the plain teaching of the Bible." I have heard him remark many times—"I have no patience with a man who would destroy the teaching of the Bible."

He was interested in the City in which he lived for many years. Though sometimes his views are different from many others yet he was honest and earnest in his position. He believed in progress, education and religion.

It can be truthfully said of Bill Milton that he was a man of fine intellect. He was by no means an ordinary man from the standpoint of intellectuality. He was well read. He kept what he read. From books that the average business man would never think of reading this man would recite line after line. Shakespeare was often found flowing through his lips. He could repeat verse and chapters of the Bible almost verbatim.

He loved his family. No man ever honored a wife more than this man. She was his emblem of purity. She was of the greatest of women. His children, how he loved them. A man may often go in a very strange direction and be exactly what he thinks he is not. He loved his church. For twenty-three years he was a member of the Arlington Baptist Church. He always said, "I am an unworthy member of this church, but no man loves it any more than I."

He was a friend to all. His money, went where it was needed. I have seen this man do some noble deeds. He never told me about them, I saw them. His great heart beat in sympathy with human needs. He was conscious of the habit that caused him so much trouble. So often he really did fight against it. Sometimes our weaknesses we do not understand. For the present the weaknesses may be forgotten as we look at the greater things in his life.

In the passing of this man this city has lost a friend, the people, the schools and the churches have lost a friend. And there are hundreds to join with the writer as he says—I have lost a friend.

With deepest sympathy for the family. His pastor, D. C. WILLIAMS.

A. T. WEEKS PASSES AWAY AT HIS HOME HERE

A. T. Weeks, age 46, passed away at his home here Friday morning, April 13, after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Weeks had lived here only a few months but was loved and respected by all those who were fortunate enough to have met him. He was stricken a few weeks ago with flu which later ran into pneumonia.

He was born in Falls County, Texas, April 7, 1882. At the age of four years he moved to Bosque County and had lived in the vicinity of Iredell most of his life until last November when he moved with his family to Arlington. He was married to Miss Agnes Phillips of Iredell, December 8, 1909.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Claude, Terrell and Dorothy Jack; his mother, Mrs. A. E. Weeks; two brothers, W. C. of Arlington, and J. E., of Cleburne; two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Gordon, Weatherford, and Mrs. E. B. Foster, Arlington, all of whom attended the funeral.

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist Church in Iredell, where the body was taken for interment, by Rev. Howard, pastor of the church there.

Mr. Weeks was converted and joined the Methodist Church at the age of seventeen and at once took his place as an active member of the church. He had served as secretary and superintendent of the Sunday School and had also been a steward in the church for many years. He did much for the community in which he lived in both a civic and religious way and had a host of friends wherever he went. He was a devoted husband and father, a good neighbor and a citizen of first rank. Though he will be missed by his loved ones we feel as James Whitcomb Riley in his poems, "A Good Man," and "Away."

A good man never dies—
In worthy deed and prayer
And helpful hands and honest eyes,
If smiles or tears be there;
Who lives for you and me—
Lives for the world he tries
To help—he lives eternally;
A good man never dies.

Who lives to bravely take
His share of toil and stress,
And, for his weaker fellow's sake,
Makes every burden less—
He may at last seem worn—
Lie fallen—hands and eyes
Folded—yet, though we mourn and mourn,
A good man never dies.

"AWAY"

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead—he is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wondered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you, O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old time step and the glad return—
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of here;
Think of him still as the same, I say;
He is not dead—he is just away!

A number of relatives and friends from Arlington accompanied the body to Iredell for the funeral services and burial.

Friday April 27 MRS. ERSULA ANN FULLER PASSES AWAY APRIL 18

Mrs. Ersula Ann Fuller, wife of W. J. Fuller, passed away on the 18th day of April at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Poland, on the Fort Worth-Dallas pike in the Pantego community. Mrs. Fuller was formerly Miss Ersula Ann Blessing, of the Euless community, at which place she joined the Methodist Church in her young girlhood. Her faith never wavered in all her trials. Mrs. Fuller is survived by her husband, W. J. Fuller, five daughters, Mrs. Eva Sweaney of Fort Worth, Mrs. Myrtle Hansen of Crowley, Mrs. Jennie Webb and Mrs. Daisey Poland of Arlington and Miss Thelma Fuller of Crowley; five sons, Roy of Crowley, Arthur, Jess and Bascom of Arlington and Clifford of Crowley; three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Fuller of Euless, Mrs. H. S. Ellis of Dallas and Mrs. Joe Johnson of Caddo, Colo., and four brothers, J. B. Blessing of Amherst, J. M. Blessing of Littlefield, A. S. and Thad Blessing of Dallas and a host of friends.

The acting pallbearers were Thurman Patton, James Patton, Warren Fuller, Edd Fuller, Buster Rodgers and Vernon Miller. All nephews of the deceased except Vernon Miller.

At 11 o'clock on the 19th her remains rested under the tabernacle of the Calloway Cemetery, where Rev. B. M. Bennett of Arlington preached an excellent and touching sermon.

Her remains were viewed by hundreds of friends and all near relatives with the exception of Mrs. Joe Johnson of Caddo, Colo., whose absence was caused by sickness in the family.

No school was held at Pantego on the 19th as the children were as eager to show their respect as the older ones, who had been associated with her some 19 years.

Her spirit has gone to God who gave it, but the memory of her and her noble character will remain for years to come.

Friday April 27 EULESS NEWS By Sally Ferris

We were sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Ersula Fuller, who departed this life Wednesday, April 18. Mrs. Fuller, who was Miss Ersula Blessing, before her marriage to Mr. Will Fuller, was reared in this community. They lived here several years after they were married and then moved to the Pantego community where they have lived for a number of years. Mrs. Fuller was 61 years old at the time of her death. Many years ago, when a child she had joined the Euless Methodist Church of which she was a member until she moved away, then she moved her membership to Arlington where she belonged at the time of her death. She was always very true and loyal to the church, always ready to do what she could for anyone who needed her help. Everyone who knew her loved her very much. Mrs. Fuller had been ill for a long time and had gone through a lot of suffering in spite of the best medical treatment she could receive. But we know and realize that her suffering is over now and that she is in a land of joy and peace. We feel that her life was a good example for us to pattern after and though she has gone to rest, we expect her friends and loved ones to try to live the kind of a life she lived before us. When we give up a real Christian like Mrs. Fuller, it makes us feel nearer heaven and should make us strive harder to live right.

She leaves to mourn her death her husband, five daughters, Mrs. E. A. Sweeney, Mrs. Myrtle Hanson, Mrs. Jennie Webb, Mrs. Daisey Poland, and Miss Thelma Fuller and five sons, Roy, Arthur, Bascom, Clifford and Jesse and a host of other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were conducted at the Calloway Cemetery, Euless community, by Rev. S. M. Bennett, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Arlington, by her request.

The beautiful floral offering proved that she had many friends who loved her.

Active pallbearers were her nephews, Thurman and Harley Patton, of Fort Worth, Edd and Warren Fuller of Euless, assisted by Buster Rogers of Fort Worth and Vernon Miller of Pantego.

Honorary pallbearers were, Raymond, Horace, Hubert, Truman, Andrew and Homer Fuller all of this place, Elton Patton of Fort Worth and Larkin Fuller of Dallas.

AUTO WRECK KILLS NEGRO

Mose Clay, 40, negro cook at Rainbow Gardens, Dalworth, was instantly killed at 8:30 Monday morning when he was flung high in the air from the seat of a car which he was driving and hit on his head on the cement pike. This was caused by two cars hitting head-on, the negro's small car and a large automobile occupied by J. A. Watson and son and A. L. Whipkey, all of Dallas. Mr. Whipkey, who is a neighbor of the Watson's and a man of advanced years, was very painfully injured, being cut and bruised about the head and body, but is thought he will recover. He was given first-aid treatment in Arlington and carried to a hospital where it is feared internal injuries may prove fatal. Wilson and his son, who was driving, were only slightly bruised.

According to a statement made by the younger Wilson, the negro was driving very rapidly down the highway, dodging in and out among the traffic. As Wilson was passing several cars going in the opposite direction, the negro suddenly swerved out from behind a car and into the road, striking his car almost instantly. The negro's body seemingly was lifted from the front seat and flung high above the windshield, landing on his head in the road.

Whether the business man of the future will travel across the oceans by water or by air will probably be determined during 1928. It is expected that about September, possibly earlier, the British dirigible R-100 will make test flights between London, New York and Montreal. If these flights are as successful as hoped for and expected it may be set down as certain that an immense world travel by dirigibles will be inaugurated. The R-100 is made five times as strong as the Shenandoah.

The largest searchlight ever made was displayed at the Electrical and Industrial Exposition held in New York City, a few months ago. This new marvel emits a light of two billion candle power, bright enough to enable one to read a newspaper by its light at a distance of 40 miles. It is mounted on an apparatus carried on a motor truck, and is so delicately adjusted that it can be operated by a child.

The call of his Master came in the morning of his career with life's labors barely begun and the field of his endeavors lying yet unexplored. But, let us find consolation in the knowledge that God's ways are not our ways, and say with the apostle:

O, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God: How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out.

And again:

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard; neither have entered into the heart of man the things that God hath prepared for them that love him.

and

"The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us."

Then, with the poet we may say:

There is no death; the stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more.

There is no death; the dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer showers
To golden grain or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow tinted flowers.

EXPLANATORY

It was reported in the Journal of last week that a man charged with murder and living with the wife of the slain man had been arrested on the Trigg farm in the Euless community. J. F. Evans, who lives on the Trigg farm, gives the writer the following information, which we are glad to publish to clear up any wrong impression or misunderstanding which might reflect on anyone: The Trigg farm is owned by McClean & Scott, who have W. B. Scott in charge. Mr. Kitridge of Dallas owns 80 acres of land adjoining the farm on the west, and he had rented the 80-acre farm to the accused man, who was temporarily occupying two rooms in the large house on the Trigg farm until quarters could be provided on the Kitridge place. This man arrested, named Scolf, and companion were total strangers to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Scott and Mr. Evans, who live on the Trigg farm, and nothing was known about them. These good people living on the Trigg farm have been severely annoyed and embarrassed, and it is hoped that the above information will correct any false impression.

VAST INDUSTRIES TRACE ORIGIN TO NAPOLEONIC WARS

Two Staple Foods Result From Privations During Crises in France.

Chicago.—Wars of the two Napoleons gave the United States two staple food commodities on which American housewives spend millions of dollars every day, according to a bulletin issued here by the American Research Foundation.

“Beet sugar which Americans consume to the extent of 2,000,000,000 pounds annually was the contribution of Napoleon I,” says the bulletin, “while margarine of which we use 250,000,000 pounds yearly was made possible by Napoleon III in the stormy days of the Franco-Prussian war.

“The principle of crystalizing sugar from beets was discovered by Andrew Margraff, a German scientist, in 1747, but Napoleon I was the first to give commercial application to the discovery in his wars against England for world supremacy. The British naval blockade prevented cane sugar from the tropics from reaching France and confronted the nation with a sugar famine.

“So Napoleon determined to make France independent of other countries for its sugar supply by utilizing sugar beets. He set aside huge tracts of land, compelled the planting of sugar beets by imperial decree in 1811 and within two years financed the erection of 334 beet sugar factories.

“Impetus given to beet culture by Napoleon carried the industry to the United States where it was first undertaken at Northampton, Mass., in 1838. From this beginning beet sugar manufacturing has developed into a great American industry representing an investment of $200,000,000 in factories and equipment and production in excess of 900,000 tons of sugar annually.

“Origin of margarine was equally romantic. The siege of Paris by the Prussian army in 1870 threatened starvation to the beleaguered city. Cattle driven inside the walls as a food reserve were being rapidly slaughtered and the life-giving fat was being destroyed. Napoleon III in desperation offered a prize to anyone who would transform the finer fats into a lasting edible product. So Hippolyte Mege-Mouries, a French chemist, discovered a method of imitating nature’s process of producing milk fat by combining beef fats, milk, and oil. The result was a food of great palatability which was called margarine.

“The French scientist’s discovery failed to save the besieged city but it established a world-wide industry because of the wholesomeness and economy of the product. The Prussians carried the formula for making margarine back to Germany whence it was passed on to England, Denmark, Belgium, and eventually to America.

“From an output of a few thousand pounds, margarine manufacturing in the United States has developed into a major industry with a yearly production valued at more than $60,000,000. About 76,000,000 pounds of milk, 129,130,000 pounds of vegetable oil, 128,000,000 pounds of animal fats, and 39,450,000 pounds of cottonseed oil from American farms, are utilized in the manufacture of margarine every year.”

J. S. FORT PASSES AWAY SUNDAY

J. S. Fort, known as “Uncle Johnnie” Fort, age 94, passed away at his home here early Sunday morning, after an illness of only a few minutes.

Mr. Fort was born in Trigg County, Kentucky, June 21, 1834. He came to Texas in 1876 with his father and sister, first stopping at Sherman, Texas, for about three weeks and then coming on to Arlington where he lived until the time of his death.

In 1898 he was married to Miss Sallie Watson. To this union were born two children, both of whom died at an early age. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. J. S. Fort.

Mr. Fort had been a member of the Baptist Church for 64 years and was the oldest living member of the Arlington Baptist Church. He did many services for his church and the community in which he lived and his friends were numbered by those whom he met. His cheerful smile will long be remembered. Despite his age of almost a century he was active almost until the time of his death. Although he had not done very much work for the last few years, he was able to be up most of the time and was in Arlington on Saturday afternoon, talking with old friends, just before his death Sunday morning.

Funeral services were conducted at the Watson Church Monday afternoon at 3 p. m. with Rev. D. C. Williams in charge, assisted by Rev. S. M. Bennett, Rev. L. C. Collier for Forrest Hill, Rev. P. F. Ford of Allen, Texas, and W. M. Moore of Fort Worth. Interment was in Watson cemetery.

Pallbearers were his nephews: Hugh Copeland, Walter Stovall, Donnie Yankee, John Fort, A. B. Post, David Miller, J. B. Watson, Dr. H. V. Copeland and Jim Wheeler.

The death of Mr. Fort marks the passing of another of Arlington's pioneer citizens, who have watched Arlington grow from a mere village to a thriving and prosperous city. Mr. Fort was loved and respected, not only because he was a pioneer of this city, but because of his cheerful disposition and his willingness to be of service to his fellow man.

IN MEMORY OF MISS BERTHA MATLOCK

Little Bertha lay very sick for some time. During the long hours of suffering she had been comforted by the entertainment furnished by the radio. One night while she was listening to the music that came from the radio a beautiful voice began to sing, "Lay My Head Beneath the Rose":

Sleep on thy beauty, thou sweet angel child,

By sorrow unslighted, by sin undefiled;

Like the dove to the ark, thou hast flown to thy rest

From the sea of strife to the home of the blest.

Bertha, this lovely bud so young and fair
Called hence by early doom;
Called to show how sweet a flower on
Paradise would bloom;
Ere sin could harm or sorrow fade;
Death came with friendly care;
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
and bade it blossom there.
A light as from her household gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in her home
That never can be filled.
We can not tell who next may fall
Beneath thy chasting rod
One must be first, but let us all prepare to meet our God.

By Mrs. Chas. Massey.

Friday June 8 ENGINEER SNEEZES TEETH AND BACKS TRAIN UP TO FIND THEM

Lexington, Ky., June 6. - (Autocaster) -A. G. Bush, veteran engineer, had just started on his run from Hodgenville to Elizabethtown when he leaned out of his cab and sneezed. He hurled his false teeth into a ditch beside the track. The train ran half a mile before he could recover from his surprise.

Then he reversed the engine and went back to the scene of his misfortune. Both crew and passengers joined vainly in the search.

The train went on, but looking backward the engineer saw someone of a local searching party waving to him! Again he backed up. The teeth had been found!

Loud was the applause and cheering as he restored them to their place.

BELOVED CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

J. Duff Brown, M. D. passed away Saturday, June 9th at his home in Arlington, Texas. Doctor Brown was born in Oakland, Colorado County, Texas, December 15th, 1856. He was educated at Oakland Academy, and upon finishing there, attended the Vanderbilt Medical School, of Nashville, Tenn., from which he graduated, and following his course at Vanderbilt, he attended the Kentucky School of Medicine, at Louisville, Kentucky, and graduated there. He then returned to Oakland where he practiced medicine as the co-partner of his father, Dr. J. Duff Brown, Sr., and later they moved to Llano, Llano County, Texas, where they practiced for many years.

Doctor Brown was married to Kate C. Kinnard of Franklin, Tenn., Feb. 15th, 1877, and he and his good wife celebrated their fiftieth anniversary last year in Arlington. On October 23rd, last year, Mrs. Brown died, as the result of a stroke of paralysis, and strange as it may seem, Doctor Brown suffered an identical stroke, two weeks ago, and lingered two weeks, gradually growing worse, until he passed to his reward. He will be buried in the family burial plot in Llano, Texas.

Doctor Brown was a devout Christian. A member of the Methodist Church, and loyal to all its causes. He spent a life of devotion to his wife and family. Mrs. Brown was an invalid for years, and the Doctor moved from place to place, trying to find some climate that would benefit her health. During all this time, Doctor Brown never murmured, and all that knew him, state that his life was one of sweet devotion to his wife. They were bound together by more than a marriage certificate, for their union was one tied by the Father above, which lasted through this world, and will continue in the world above.

Doctor Brown was a talented surgeon, and recognized as an exceptional doctor. During the latter years of his life, prior to moving to Arlington, he practiced medicine in Mineral Wells, Texas. While there he enjoyed a large practice, and numbered among his patients were some of the most noted men in America. Yet the Doctor had one invariable rule, which was, that regardless of whether or not you had money, you would receive the same medical attention in his office and sanitarium, as the man who paid for the service. This charge, he entered in a separate ledger, headed, "The Lord's Account," and there were many accounts in his book marked "Paid by draft on the bank of Heaven." He always said that he would some day be repaid. Every patient was treated, regardless of his financial or literary standing, just as they came in his office. Frequently the rich man waited for the charity patient, for the Doctor made no distinction. He gave a large sum of money to Buckner's Orphan Home of Dallas, a few years before moving to Arlington.

Several days before his death he talked to those around his bed, and told them that "The Greatest Solace of life was to come to the end knowing that you were prepared. He said he had tried to live a life of helping others, and that he was ready to go, and ended with admonition to others to live right and do right, finally completing his talk by quoting, "Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me,
And may there be no mourning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

“For though from out our bourne of
Time and Place,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed bar.”

Doctor Brown took life good naturedly. Smiled and whistled. He cheered those in trouble, and especially the unfortunates. For many years he was Secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners of his district and the county physician of Llano County and Comanche County. Each Thanksgiving and Christmas while he was County Physician of Llano County he paid for and had prepared with the assistance of his noble wife, a bounteous meal, for all the inmates of the jail of Llano. Even the hardest criminal loved him. In hundreds of instances, when he was attending at the bedside of some patient, whom he knew could not live, he would forget that he was merely a doctor, and he would get the Bible, read and pray with them, and ask “How is it with your soul?” Good men may go, but their works will live on forever. So it is with the life of Doctor Brown.

He is survived by two sons, Major Lindsley M. Brown, and Jack Duff Brown of Arlington, and Mrs. Annie L. Clinton of Indianapolis, Indiana, an adopted daughter. They were at his bedside when he died. He has three brothers, Doctor H. H. Brown, Sr., of Yoakum, Texas, Mr. A. P. Brown of Llano, and Drew N. Brown of Mobile, Alabama, and one sister, Mrs. Sam Stoudenmier, of Mineral Wells, Texas.

The services in Arlington were conducted at the Methodist Church by Rev. Roy A. Langston, pastor, with Rev. S. M. Bennett, pastor Presbyterian Church, Rev. D. C. Williams, pastor Arlington Baptist Church, and Rev. J. H. Bradley, pastor First Baptist Church, assisting with the service. Funeral service was held at the home of Mr. Grady Faubian, a nephew, in Llano.

The body was accompanied to Llano by relatives and friends, and Rev. D. C. Brown of Arlington, who had charge of the funeral.

The Arlington active pallbearers were: S. A. Scott, Dr. R. E. Weaver, R. T. McCarter, Dr. H. M. Kearby, Newt Lyons, Oscar M. Harrell, John M. Houston and W. J. Willis.

CONFESSES TO BRUTAL MURDER

Wellington, Tex., June 14. – Sheriff Claude McKinney added to his laurels as a peace officer last week by materially aiding in unfathoming the mystery surrounding the disappearance of

May 4 of James Preston Coleman, 43 years of age, and a long time resident of Wellington and Collingsworth County when the dead body of the man was found 106 feet below the surface of the earth in an abandoned coal mine, 7 miles southwest of Bowie.

Cliff Hinton, who was associate with Coleman as a worker for the Prairie Pipe Line Company at Bowie, was arrested at Throckmorton by Sheriff McKinney and made a full and complete confession of the crime, implicating no one but himself. However, his brother-in-law, Warner Bird, 28 years of age, was arrested as an accessory to the crime. Both men have been placed in the county jail at Montague.

Hinton's confession, as made to Sheriff McKinney, follows: "My name is Cliff Hinton. I am making this statement voluntarily, because I want to make it. I am making it in the presence of C. E. McKinney, of Wellington, Collingsworth County.

"On Friday night, May 4, 1928, I asked J. P. Coleman to walk over here a while. He said all right. We went over to the Sid Irvin coal mine, and we got up close to the air shaft, about seventy-five feet from the mouth of the mine. I was seven feet from the air shaft, and I shot him twice from the front. He fell on his face and lay there about five minutes. Then I picked him up and dropped him down the air shaft. I heard him fall.

Reason for Killing

"The reason I wanted to kill him was because I got mad at him, because he wouldn't pay me $47.50 for labor. After I killed him I went into his pocket and found two ten dollar bills. Then on Saturday morning, May 5, 1928, I went to Bowie and found a man by the name of Gibbons and I asked him $300 for the two horses and one mare, and wagon, two sets of harness and two fresnoes and he offered me $275, and I sold them to him and he paid me in money. This, the first of June, 1928. Cliff Hinton. Witness: C. E. McKinney, J. B. Foster, Jno. W. Wales."

Coleman for some time had been employed as a worker for the Prairie Pipe Line company in the vicinity of Bowie and when he was missed from his employ and failed to show up, investigation immediately got under way, as foul play was feared, but it was not until May 31, twenty-seven days after he was first listed as missing, that the decomposed body of Coleman was found in the mine shaft, where the murderer had tossed the lifeless body in an effort to shield his heinous crime. Two bullet wounds were found in the body, both being in the man's breast.

The first to feel that something had gone amiss with Coleman was J. C. Alexander, whom Coleman had wired to meet him in Bowie. According to Alexander's statement, he went to Bowie as directed in the telegram, but when his friend did not show up, he communicated with his home to find if he was here and when he learned that Coleman was not in Wellington, he notified Sheriff McKinney that he would be here and the two of them, upon solicitation of Coleman's relatives, left for Bowie.

The sheriff ran down several clues and finally decided that the guilt for the murder pointed in the direction of Cliff Hinton. He was located at Throckmorton upon the information furnished the officers there by McKinney who then went after him and it was on the return trip to Bowie that the confession was made by Hinton. Gaining the information that the body was in the deserted mine, the sheriff accompanied by a large number of citizens went to that place. Even before they reached it, the smell of decaying flesh penetrated their nostrils, attesting to the tangible evidence of death.

As the crowd approached the place neglected by man to decay and revert to the nature which inspired it, Warner Bird, on whose property the mine was located, stopping his plowing in a nearby field and came up to the party. He inquired what the excitement was about and when told that a search was being made for a missing man, he scoffed at the idea that any dead man was in the mine, saying that the odor came from a dog which he had killed and had thrown in the mine. Bird then left and returned to his farm work.

Paying no attention to what the man had said regarding having killed a dog and placed its body in the mine, the investigators began a thorough search. Sheriff McKinney turned his flashlight into the black recesses far beneath him and there dimly outlined could be seen a dark mass, the outlines of which were indistinct. A man named Sanders volunteered to go down the shaft and see what the mine held. He was lowered slowly by means of a rope and upon reaching the bottom gave out the information that the search was at an end as Coleman's body had been found.

Exercising exceeding care and tenderness, the body was raised to the surface and prepared for burial and his wife and three children in Wellington, together with other relatives were notified, thus ending the long and uncertain vigil which they had maintained since their loved one had first disappeared.

Immediately after finding the body, Bird was arrested as an accessory to the crime.

Following the finding of the body last Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, it was shipped to this city for burial, funeral services being conducted at the First Baptist Church.

Paul Norman Jr. Killed In Wreck at Rush Creek

Car Plunges into Creek and Injures Boy Fatally

Paul Norman, of Garland, age 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Norman, Sr., of that city, was fatally injured Monday at 7 p.m. when a car which he was driving plunged through the railing of a temporary bridge over Rush Creek on the Ft. Worth-Dallas pike, three miles west of this city. He was well known in Arlington.

Funeral services were held at the Arlington Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. A. Duncan, Baptist minister, of Dallas, assisted by Rev. M. Owens, Baptist minister, of Garland, and Rev. Roy A. Langston, pastor of the Methodist Church of Arlington. The funeral was attended by a large crowd of friends of the deceased and relatives, the house being filled in spite of the fact that a rainstorm was raging at the time.

Young Norman was the only occupant of the car at the time of the accident. He received a fractured skull and internal injuries which caused his death early Tuesday morning, after being taken to a hospital in Ft. Worth. The car was a total wreck, being bent and twisted as it tore through the heavy wooden railings and smashed on the opposite bank of the river, falling back into the water and pinning Norman underneath. He was soon extricated by several persons who were near and rushed to his rescue. He was unconscious when found and did not recover up to the time of death.

Paul Norman Jr. was well known in Arlington, having lived here with his parents for many years. A great mass of floral offerings from his friends attested to his popularity and bespoke silently and lovingly the high regard in which he was held by the people of this city. He had been connected with the Norman Dry Goods Co. store at Garland, Texas, for about a year before his death, and had made many friends in that city. Bro. Owens, his pastor at Garland, came to this city to attend funeral services and spoke very tenderly of his acquaintance with this young man.

He is survived by immediate members of the family as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Norman Sr. and little son, Jack, of Garland, parents and brother, respectively; Mrs. Forrest Green of Arlington, a sister; Bill Norman of Arlington, a brother. Many other relatives from out-of-town were present at the funeral.

Friday July 27 EULESS NEWS

We were sorry indeed to know that Mr. Thomas P. Huffman departed this life last Sunday morning. He was born in Tennessee in 1869. With his family he moved to Texas while he was a young man. They settled in this community and this is where he made his home until his death. In 1890 he was married to Miss Cynthia Elizabeth Fuller. To this union was born eight children. Two were called home when just babies. One, Miss Ruth, was taken home when she was eighteen years of age. Even though we know these three are happy to be reunited with their father, the rest of the family have the heartfelt sympathy of this community in their loneliness for him.

Mr. Huffman was a man whom everyone loved. He was a man who tried to live for other people. If there was ever a chance for him to do a good deed for anyone he certainly did what he could for them. I don't believe that anyone ever went to him for help but what they received what they asked for. Just why would Mr. Huffman do so much for his friends? Because he loved them. We must remember the Bible says "love your neighbor as yourself," and it also says, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." We believe Mr. Huffman did this and it takes love to do this. If we could all have a spirit like that this world would be much better.

Mr. Huffman joined the Methodist Church of this place at the age of twenty. He was still a member at the time of his death. Although he has been in ill health and hasn't been able to attend church for a long time, we can't help from thinking of him and thanking God for what he has done for us in years gone by. When we built our church house, a few years ago, we remember very well that Mr. Huffman is the man who did more work than anyone else. He not only gave his time and labor but he did far more than his part financially. When we look around and see so many things he has done for the people of this community it makes us so sad to think we did so little for him when we had a chance to help him. All we can do now is to pray for God to forgive us this time and from now on help those we have a chance to help.

Mr. Huffman served two terms as Commissioner of Tarrant County. It was during the time 1906-1910. He was known all over the county and everyone loved him very much.

Mr. Huffman has been ill for a long time and has suffered so much, but we realize that his suffering is now over and that he is in a land of joy, peace and rest. Even though it will be so lonely here without him, we know it is a blessing to him to be at rest. It is also a blessing for God to choose some one who was ready to meet Him. We must bear in mind that we, too, must meet God some day, so let's try to realize more fully the life we must live and try to be ready to meet Him with a smile when He calls for us.

May we all feel nearer Heaven since our dear friend has gone on and let's hope and pray that someone who knows not Christ will realize their condition and try to live a better life.

The funeral service was conducted in the Methodist Church Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Rev. W. Curry of Mansfield, assisted by the pastor of the Baptist Church, Rev. Stringer. The text taken by Rev. Curry was "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am ye may be also." So, let's each be ready to fill our mansion when He comes to us.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. C. E. Huffman; two sons, S. H. and B. A. Huffman, both of Euless; three daughters, Mrs. Edd Fuller, Mrs. Lee Byers, both of this place, and Mrs. Clarence Himes of Grapevine; twelve grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Mollie Morris, of Wise county; three brothers, J. W. Huffman, of Grapevine, J. D. and J. L. Huffman of Arlington and a host of friends.

It was proved that his friends loved him by the beautiful floral offerings that were given.

The pallbearers were Robert Duckett, Warren Fuller, Alec Booker, James Jones, E. B. Robertson and J. H. Champion. The flower girls were Misses Louise Fuller, Gertrude Ferris, Bernice Bates, Katherine Cromer, Mrs. Warren Fuller, and Mrs. Jessie Eden all of Euless; Misses Pearl and Josie Huffman, Mrs. Raymond Pemberton and Mrs. Theo. Huffman, all of Arlington; Miss Margaret Huffman of Grapevine and Miss Dona Glenn of Fort Worth.

His burial took place at the Calloway Cemetery.

BIRTH AND DEATH REGISTRATIONS OF TARRANT CO.

This county has now been organized in accordance with the new Vital Statistics Law, by the appointment of registrars for each justice precinct and each incorporated town or city. In some cases, where two or more precincts have been combined into one district, where it seemed best so to do.

Every birth is required by law to be reported to the local registrar of the district in which it occurs, by the attending physician or midwife, or where there was neither, then by the father or mother, within five days after the birth.

The law prohibits the burial or removal of a dead body before a death certificate properly and completely filled out has been filed with the local registrar, and a burial or removal permit has been secured.

The immense legal value of these records makes it important that the citizens of Texas be given this protection by having a complete, legal record properly filed in accordance with this law.

In the first three months of 1928, there were reported from Tarrant county 694 births and 570 deaths. This indicates about 65 per cent of the births and 85 per cent of the deaths which probably occurred. Let's go 100 per cent from now on.

Below is a list of local registrars of this county, and it is urged that you make every effort to comply with the law and to aid in securing complete registration in your county. For further information, address State Department of Health, Bureau of Vital Statistics, Austin, Texas.

J. H. Faulkner, Court House, Fort Worth, Precincts 1, 5, 7.

Marguerite Cummings, Fort Worth, Fort Worth.

Friday August 10 7-Year-old Girl Killed By Auto

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Elkins of This City

Burtie Kathryn Elkins, seven years of age, of Arlington, was killed yesterday morning at 11:45 o'clock on East Division street when struck by an automobile driven by E. Renefeldt of Electra, Texas, an oil field worker.

The child was picked up by eye-witnesses to the accident and carried to the office of Dr. E. C. Hancock, but died a few minutes after arriving there. The child's head was badly crushed, neck broken and bruised about the body. Renefeldt stopped and rendered all aid possible.

The accident was said by eyewitnesses to be unavoidable. The little girl who met death had been down the street playing with the Hayes children and with her smaller sister was on her way home. They, together with several other children were riding on the back of a wagon filled with watermelons on its way to Fort Worth and when the Elkins home was reached the smaller girl ran across the street and Burtie Kathryn attempted to follow. "She did not leave the wagon soon enough," declared the younger one. "I saw the car coming away down the pike as I ran across, but sister left the wagon too late and was struck," declared Nannie Lee, her sister.

Burtie Kathryn Elkins was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Elkins of Arlington. Mr. Elkins is proprietor of a auto service station on Division street. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at Grand Saline, Texas.

DO YOU REMEMBER? (with a little literary license)

By Bill Doozerdoo

Do you remember, way back when say, thirty, forty years

You never saw your sweetheart's limbs
But judged her by her ears?

The kids got washed each Saturday night,

And Daddy cut their hair;
Their suits were made from Uncle's pants,
And they wore no underwear.

The women padded, but did not paint,
Nor smoke, nor drink, nor vote.
Men wore boots and little stiff hats,
And whiskers like a goat.

You never needed a bank account,
Your beer gave six per cent;
The hired girl got three bucks a week,
And twelve bucks paid the rent.

You could stand each night, when work was o'er,
With one foot on the rail,
And your hip supported not a thing,
Except your own shirt tail.

Not a soul had appenndicitis,
Nor thought of buying glands;
The butcher gave his liver away,
But charged you for his hams.

Giant 20-Passenger Planes Now Being Built
Promise Luxurious Service

Four giant 20-passenger monoplanes, the largest ever built in America, equipped with luxurious private compartments and sleeping berths for night flying are now under construction at Bristol, Pa., and when completed will operate on regular schedule between New York and the west coast.

The new giants of the air, according to an announcement by Edgar N. Gott, president of the Keystone Aircraft Corp., builder of the planes, are expected to bring aerial travel for long cross-country journeys into the realm of the commonplace.

Like Crack Trains

The appointments of the planes will parallel those of a crack limited train. The private compartment, containing a standard sized berth, hot and cold water and toilet facilities, will be built directly behind the pilot's cabin and at the front of the main cabin.

In the rear of the plane a mail clerk will be able to perform his work amid surroundings almost identical with those on a mail train. This will enable the mail to be sorted while the plane is speeding through the air. Although details still must be worked out by the Postoffice Department, it is extremely likely that mailbags with attached parachutes will come into common use, enabling mail for cities along the route to be dropped as the plane speeds overhead. Certainly, it is no more difficult to imagine than that a train could pick up a mail pouch while traveling at 60 miles an hour—a detail that had to be worked out not so many years ago.

Weighs 7 ½ Ton

When loaded with enough fuel for four and one-half hours of flying, one-half ton of mail or express, eighteen passengers and two pilots, the "Patrician," as the planes are called, will weigh approximately seven and one-half tons.

In the main cabin, passengers will sit in deep cushioned individual chairs. Continuous glass panels, extending practically the entire 20-foot length of the cabin, will permit unobstructed views in all directions, since the craft is of the monoplane type and there will be no lower wing to shut off the view.

A radio installed in the cabin will permit the passengers to listen to general programs for their entertainment, or the pilot can "cut in" at any time to make announcements as to location, scenery or contemplated maneuvers. The loud speaker will be built into the ceiling. Specially constructed instruments, larger than usual, will be mounted on the forward wall of the cabin to permit the passengers to keep informed of the altitude, air speed and time.

Between the main cabin and the mail compartment, facilities will be provided for preparing buffet meals. A chef will be able to preside here in much the same manner as he does in the club car of a train.

Three Wright "Cyclone" engines will power the Patrician. They will develop 1575 horsepower to give the craft a high speed of 155 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 130. The planes will have a 90-foot wing spread.

Friday November 9 IN MEMORY OF MRS. S. E. LARD

Amid the changing scenes of life we often pause in sad reflection over events that sweep away the things that bring peace and happiness; and floods the home with sorrow and sadness. We stand in awe before the tragedy that leaves us bereft of the joy that stayed a little while and left. We cannot say why the good should die in the prime of life. We know not why the pure in heart should suffer the pangs of agony during the long night of death. We cry aloud for the answer; but the echo of our mournful cry is the only response. This age old problem still lays hold of our hearts to bow down the aged and the young. It is the enigma of life. Thus it is with us today as we look back in memory's vista. One there was whose smile was framed with beauty and sincerity and friendship. The smile of bravery amid the things that hurt and defeat our purposes. Character that gleamed with the life of love and patience and gentleness. Such a friend was Mrs. Lillie Lard from day to day.

She came, and as she passed by, she gave the world the best she had; and now we know that the best has come back to her. She went away leaving a memory that is a benediction to all who knew her. But surely around about us we can see the life that was, still living in our midst. The things that she has wrought remain with us today. The work at hand, of heart, and mind, remain as the presence of incense after the fire has been extinguished.

Thus she lived and thus she passed out. When she came to face that great finale of life, she went as one who lies down to silent sleep. She was a Christian. What better tribute can be said? Though there come no voice from the silent ashes of the dead, in the hour of death, Faith, Hope and Love can feel the touch of those who is borne to that Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. That place where the song birds dwell; where the sun is shining; and the load is lifted where the angels await.

Friday November 9 LITTLE LOTTIE THOMPSON BURIED SUNDAY

Funeral services were conducted for little Lottie Thompson at the First Christian church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Rev. R. C. Brown officiated assisted by Rev. S. M. Bennett. Miss Virgie Spruance sang softly "When Jesus Came Into My Heart," a much loved hymn of the little girl and one that she so often had Miss Spruance sing to her during her long hours of illness. Lottie was just eleven years of age, a real Christian and loved by all who knew her. During the long months of suffering she never failed to smile and give to the world just a little more sunshine.

Little Lottie is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thompson, two sisters, Joyce and Mary Ruth and three brothers, Garland, Ray and Alton.

Many beautiful floral offerings gave mute testimony of the love and esteem of the friends she left.

"She is not dead; she has but passed
Beyond the mist that blinds us here,
Into the new and larger life

Of that serene sphere.
She has but dropped her robe of clay,
To put her shining raiment on;
She has not wandered far away—
She is not "lost" or "gone"
Tho disenthralled and glorified
She still is here and loves us yet;
The dear ones she has left behind
They never can forget."

Friday November 9 A TRIBUTE TO LITTLE LOTTIE THOMPSON

Having lived a pure and beautiful life and in her long illness exhibiting a patience and fortitude most remarkable, little Lottie Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thompson passed triumphantly to the Great Beyond at the sunset hour of Nov. 3.

Lottie came into the home of Mr. and Ms. Thompson eleven years ago the 24 of last March and was ever a source of joy and inspiration in the home. She was characterized by a courtesy and thoughtfulness of others, very unusual for one so young. As a result of these characteristics, she was hospitable in her home and was never more happy than when sharing its blessings and pleasures with others.

Lottie came into the church at a very tender age and it was ever her delight to wait upon its services, and its hymns of praise and thanksgiving were often upon her lips. So well did she love these hymns, that after she was confined to her bed of affliction, she would sing them and when too weak to sing she would call upon others to sing them for her.

The most beautiful and sublime characteristic of Lottie's life was her love for, and devotion to her mother and unto the end her solicitude for her mother was her chief concern. "Mother, mother, my mother!" were the last words framed by her little lips—save the cry of triumph and victory, which at the last broke from her lips—though her physical eyes had been blind for weeks—"I see, I see, I see!"

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Friday November 9 Card of Thanks

Your every act and expression was comforting to us, and may you receive many blessings.

Friday November 16 WATSON NEWS By Frances English

A large crowd attended the funeral of our loved one, Mrs. Clarence Watt, who was laid to rest Thursday evening. Many beautiful flowers were sent by the large number of friends. We know that this Christian mother and wife is now at rest, out of her grief and pain. She is now with the One Who gave her life. May this parting of friends cause us to see plainer the happiness in Christianity and to hear the wonderful words at the end of time, "Thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over few things, I will make thee ruler over many." Mrs. Watt will always be remembered by her kind acts and deeds and her warm love for every one. She was loved by all who knew her. She was born and reared in this community.

ARLINGTON SHOULD PAINT NAME ON DEPOT SAYS EASTERWOOD

Arlington Journal,
Arlington, Texas

My Dear Editor and Friend:

As vice-president of the American Legion Department of Texas, I have undertaken a big job for the year 1929. Aviation is the topic of today, and as you know, I have had aviation at heart for some ten years.

I have gotten permission from several of the railway companies, agreeing to paint the name of the town on top of the depot at cost, which would be a very small sum. If you will publish this letter, and at the same time see the Chamber of Commerce and see if they will underwrite this small cost of painting the name of your town on top of your depot, so the flyers can see where they are when in the air. This is as important as a sign on a highway.

Thanking you for past favors, I remain,

Yours very truly,

W. E. EASTERWOOD, JR.

Lived Here Quarter Century

Beloved Arlington Pioneer, who was buried Sunday

Mrs. M. E. Griffin, Pioneer Resident, Buried Sunday

Mrs. M. E. Griffin, pioneer resident of Arlington, died at her home in Arlington, December 7, 1928. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at the family residence where Mrs. Griffin had resided for more than a quarter of a century. She would have been seventy years of age Thursday, Dec. 13, had she lived.

Mrs. Griffin had seen this community grow from a small village to its present size. She moved to Texas from Polk County, Missouri, in 1866. She was married to John Griffin in Rockwall County in 1868, and came to Arlington and has lived here since.

Mrs. Griffin was known as a friend to all and always had a smile and good word for everyone. She was dearly loved by her friends and neighbors as was attested by the large company present at her funeral and the many beautiful floral offerings.

JOHN T. WHITE

Mr. Frank Tidwell was fatally injured last week when the team ran away and he was thrown from the wagon. At first the family and friends did not think he was seriously hurt, but he passed away Wednesday night.

Mr. Tidwell has lived in our community all of his life and is known as a man who has always stood for the right. We extend our sympathy to the family that he has left behind and to his brother, Mr. S. J. Tidwell who has always been a real brother throughout the hardships that have met this family within the last few years.

His funeral was held Friday at the home. Burial was at the Isham cemetery.

Last Friday we lost another one of the old timers of the John T. White community. Mr. Isham died of heart failure as he was helping dig the grave for Mr. Tidwell. Mr. Isham moved to Handley about four years ago after having lived here for about 46 years.

He had done a great deal for the advancement of this community and everyone realizes what a great friend they have lost. He was a man that always had a smile and a good word for everyone. Besides his immediate family he leaves many friends who mourn his death.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church of Handley and burial was at the cemetery which bears his name.

Friday December 21 Pigs 'Throw' Party Stagger and Fight as Mash Poured on Ground Flows Past

Thirty-six pigs on a farm four miles southeast of Handley were suffering from a terrible "hangover" Saturday morning. For the benefit of those who might not know a "hangover" is the after effects of excessive indulgence in intoxicating liquor. It is a part of the "morning after the night before."

When constables A. B. Carter, and A. Pulliam Friday afternoon raided a distillery, the largest found in this county in several years, it became their duty to destroy approximately 26,000 gallons of mash, stored in huge vats. Drainage pipes carried the fluid to a trench in the hog lot.

Hardly had the mash reached the lot until the pigs began to "throw a party." They lined up at the trench like a bunch of men at a bar. They partook freely, yes, too freely.

First of the animals to show signs of inebrity was a little red pig. Having almost reached his capacity, he left the trench and started down a hill. He couldn't stop his wobbly legs until he struck a fence post. He stretched out on the ground for several minutes until he was aroused by the larger hogs that had become rather frisky. On his feet again, the little one staggered back to the flowing liquid and again his snout was filled. Four times he left the trench and fell to the ground, only to become aroused again and continue his celebration.

One sow drank so long that her knees gave way. She fell into the trench of mash and continued to drink as the liquid flowed by.

One big boar got on a fighting drunk. He at first tried to whip the little pigs and finally felt so good that he was ready to tackle any hog in the lot.

There was one prohibitionist among the pigs. She was a big fat sow. She retired to a corner of the pen with all the indignation a pig could command, she looked with scorn upon her drunken associates.

When Carter, Pulliam and Deputies L. H. Ake, T. Couch, and Robert Mourland had finished destroying the 26,000 gallons of whiskey and the mammoth whiskey-making plant that occupied every foot of space in a barn 65 feet long, most of the 36 pigs had 'passed out' for the evening. Some, however, staggering, still stayed with the trench of flowing mash.

Four men were arrested in the raid and will face charges of violating the prohibition law.

Friday December 21 MARRYING IS HIS HOBBY

PEORIA, ILL.—William Jones, 62, a negro, has been married fifty-six times, and he has recently been arrested for passing a bad check just as he was leading Bride No. 57 to the altar.

Jones explains that marrying has been a hobby with him. His nickname is "King Solomon" Jones and he thus explains his system:

"I just married 'em when I felt like, and left 'em when I got tired."

Friday December 21 THE LOW DOWN ON MAN

Man can't sleep out of doors without freezing to death or getting the rheumatism; he can't keep his nose under water over a minute without being drowned. He is the poorest, clumsiest of all creatures that inhabit the earth.

He has to be coddled to be able to live at all. He is a rickety sort of a thing any way you take him—a regular museum of inferiorities.

He is always undergoing repairs. A machine as unreliable as he is would have no market.

The lower animals appear to us to get their teeth without pain or inconvenience. Man's come thru after several months of cruel torture and at a time when he is least able to bear it. As soon as he gets them they have to be pulled out again.

The second set will last for a while but he will never get a set he can depend upon until the dentist makes one.

Man starts in as a child, and lives on disease to the end, as a regular diet.

He has mumps, scarlet fever, whooping cough, tonsillitis and diphtheria as a matter of course.

Afterwards as he goes along his life continues to be threatened at every turn by colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis, quinsy, consumption, yellow fever, blindness, influenza, carbuncles, pneumonia, softening of the arteries, and a thousand and one other maladies of one sort or another.

He's just a basketful of pestilent corruption provided for the support and entertainment of microbes. Look at the workmanships of him in some respects.

What's the appendix for? It has no value. It's sole interest is to lie and wait for a stray seed to breed trouble. What is the beard for? It is just nuisance. All nations persecute it with a razor. Nature, however, always keeps him supplied with it, instead of putting it on his head.

A man wants to keep his hair. It is a graceful ornament, a comfort, the best protection against weather, and he prizes it above emeralds and rubies, and half the time nature puts it on and it won't stay.

Man isn't even handsome and as for style, look at the Bengal tiger—that ideal of grace and perfection and majesty.

Think of the lion, the leopard, then think of man, that poor thing.

The animal of the wig, the ear trumpet, the glass eye, the porcelain teeth, the wooden leg, the silver windpipe, a creature that is mended all from top to bottom. — Mark Twain
