Fort Worth Mayor Buys His Car Here

Something in the nature of putting one over on the big boys occurred this week when the Luke Motor Company delivered a new 1938 Plymouth sedan to Mayor Hammond of Fort Worth.

Of course a lot of Fort Worth citizens buy their cars in Arlington, but it is really pulling a fast one when a small town dealer steps in and sells the mayor in competition against the local dealers.

Friday February 11 FLEM'S FLAM By J. H. Flemister (weekly column)

DISHING IT OUT

Boy, are we crusading.

Last week we exposed the fact that hundreds in Arlington were breaking the law daily—unmolested by police—by carrying pliers in their cars. Some of our leading citizens broke down and confessed that they had been violating this law with impunity.

This week we are going to expose another branch of the city government that has slipped up a notch—the finance and tax departments.

It took a lot of snooping through the city tax rolls to uncover the evidence, but we learned that not a single tax on lightening rod and buggy peddlers was collected last year.

When we faced Finance Commissioner Sam Isaacs with this damning evidence of gross negligence he hung his head in shame.

When we confronted City Secretary Benton Collins with the facts we had so painstakingly gathered he broke down and confessed he hadn't made an attempt to collect any lightening rod and buggy peddler taxes, in spite of the fact the law plainly says these taxes shall be collected.

It's a shame to bring up these things right at election time, but the voters are entitled to the information—let the chips fall where they may.

EXPLANATION

A number of our readers—one anyway—have asked for an explanation concerning the plier carrying law. Here it is.

Back in the days when ranchers, for the first time, began fencing the range there were those who opposed the idea, wanting to retain the free range. The opposition to fencing began cutting the fences, and it was then the legislature passed the law against carrying pliers. The law has never been repealed.

Friday March 4

SERVICES ARE HELD FOR W. A. GOODWIN, 86, TEXAS PIONEER

Funeral services for William A. Goodwin, beloved resident of Tarrant County for the past 66 years, were held Monday afternoon at 4 p.m. at the Methodist Church with Rev. W. H. Cole, Dr. S. M. Bennett and Rev. John H. Patterson officiating.

Burial was in the Arlington Cemetery. Pallbearers were C. H. Wright, Web Rose, Bert Henderson, Ray McKnight, Allan Barnes and T. A. Cravens. Moore Funeral Home was in charge.

Mr. Goodwin who was 86, died unexpectedly at his home on East Abram Street shortly after an automobile ride with relatives. He had been in bad health for some time, but was still able to be up and about some.

He was born in Jackson, Miss., Jan. 28, 1852. At the age of 20 he met some friends in White County, Arkansas, who were journeying from Kentucky to Texas. Six wagons and teams were conveying the caravan to this state and Mr. Goodwin had heard and read so much of Texas with its opportunities for a young man that he had often longed to make the trip. It happened that these people needed another driver for one of the wagons and Mr. Goodwin saw this as his opportunity to come to Texas. The caravan of wagons started for Texas from Arkansas about October 14 and arrived in Texas three months late.

Mr. Goodwin often told of the roads that they traveled over which were for the most part bad. There was more mud than gravel and practically no highways. From 15 to 210 miles was covered each day, pitching camp at night by the side of the road. They finally reached Comanche County where most of the members of the party stayed, but Mr. Goodwin came on to Tarrant County. For two years he lived with Ed Rudd at Johnson Station.

Mr. Goodwin was happy in Texas except that his sweetheart was lacking and so he went back after her and brought her to Texas and they located at Johnson Station, where they lived for many years, seeing Tarrant County grow from a sparsely populated county to one of the largest in the state. When Mr. Goodwin brought his bride to Texas, Arlington had only a few buildings with a store or two and Johnson Station was the largest of the two.

He would recall when he was farming in the 70's and 80's when cotton sold for 4 cents, corn at 16 cents, oats at 18 cents, and wheat around 60 cents. Everything else was cheap then except silk. Calico was 4 and 5 cents a yard and living was simple with the people raising what ever they needed.

Mr. Goodwin was a carpenter by trade, but he spent several years in the oil business and he farmed on the side. In 1931 Mr. Goodwin painted his own home even though he was nearly 80 years old and enjoyed being able to do the task. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin had been married 65 years last October.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

For 66 years W. A. Goodwin lived while the history of Texas unfolded before his eyes as he took part in the pioneering that has carved modern communities and cities out of tiny villages and towns.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mattie E. Goodwin; four sons, T. E. Goodwin of Fort Worth, Fred Goodwin of Dallas, Frank Goodwin and Vernon H. of Arlington; two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Lawing of Arlington, and Mrs. R. G. Coffman of Fort Worth; one sister, Mrs. Lou Short of Johnson Station, 19 grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

ARLINGTON PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO PASS HALF CENTURY MARK APRIL 8

Presbyterianism in Arlington will pass the half-century mark April 8th. Fifty years for an individual is a long time, marking more than half of the span of life. But fifty years for a church is but a milestone in its expected history. But even for a church much can happen in fifty years.

The Arlington Presbyterian Church began its history as a Cumberland Presbyterian Church, organized by the Rev. D. G. Molloy on April 8th, 1888. It began with 23 charter members, its present membership is 400. During these years it has grown with the Arlington community often finding opportunity to render useful and valuable service to the community of which it is a part. Its membership has played a very definite part in all phases of the community life, providing leadership in many of the business institutional activities of Arlington. Not a one of these charter members is now living in the community. Mrs. Brinson who died about three years ago was the last of the original members to hold membership in this church.

However, some of the children and grand children still hold places of activity and leadership in the church. It is with a great deal of interest as we look back over these names recalling the relationship.

Some twenty three years ago, Rev. S. M. Bennett came to Arlington as pastor of this church. It was housed in an old frame building that stood between the present church and the present manse. The "Arlington Reporter" under the date of September 8, 1916 gave a sketch of the first 28 years of the church's history. This article was as follows:

"April 8, 1888. Rev. D. G. Molloy organized the Arlington Presbyterian church, then known as the Cumberland Presbyterian church of Arlington, Texas. The following were charter members of this organization:

G. N. Hutchenson, Alfred Hutchenson, W. M. Lytle, Joseph Toliver, Rachael Toliver, M. J. Brinson, Martha Mathis, C. A. Mathis, Lela Vines, John C. Finger, Laura Finger, Birdie Finger, Peter Finger, W. H. Hart, T. I. Estes, Ida Fuller, Bettie Lytle, A. E. Harrison, John Bowman, Eliza Beurford, Mattie Hamilton, and Q. L. Norman.

These professing Christians having met for the purpose of organizing a Cumberland Presbyterian Church, adopted a covenant of agreement then petitioned the Red Oak Presbytery to take them under its care. The Church then elected Messers. M. W. Lytle, M. J. Brinson, G. N. Hutchenson, and John C. Fingers as Ruling Elders. Mr. M. W. Lytle was the first representative of this congregation to the Red Oak Presbytery. In about a month after the church was organized it was received as a congregation of the Red Oak Presbytery, and from that time the church remained a Cumberland Presbyterian Church until the "union" and "Re-union" of the Cumberland Church the Mother Church, (Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.) in 1906.

During the 28 years of Existence of this Church the following preachers have served the Church as Pastor, or as supply, according to the record: Rev. D. G. Molloy, J. A. Coker, W. M. Bunch, A. S. Hayter, T. J. Baker, J. D. Boone, W. B. Fitzhugh, J. M. Youree, J. H. Curry, W. T. Thurman, J. E. Aubrey, and S. M. Bennett.

The wife of Rev. D. G. Molloy and his youngest daughter, Mrs. Ernest Ulmer are now members of this congregation. The wife of the second pastor, Rev. J. A. Coker is also a member of this church. Mrs. M. L. Dickerson is a daughter of Rev. T. J. Baker, still holds her membership in this church.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Mesdames Alex Vaught and Clem Coble, daughters of Rev. W. T. Thurman, are also members of the church. The Arlington Presbyterian Church is very grateful for these wives and daughters of former leaders and preachers.

Two members of the congregation are doing missionary work in China. They were sent out by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. August 1915. These are Capt. Olin W. McMillen and his wife (nee Mary Wallace.) They live at Canton, China, and are happy and contented in their far away home. Capt. McMillen will soon take charge of one of the Presbyterian Missions in China.

The Arlington Presbyterian Church has grown in usefulness and efficiency from its organization. The church is now well organized with a session composed of ten Elders: W. H. Hart, J. A. Kooken, W. M. Dugan, F. R. Wallace, Dr. W. H. Davis, A. C. Barnes, C. W. McKinney, O. W. Parris, J. H. Watson, and H. P. Evans.

The Board of Deacons composed of seven good business men direct and arrange the finances of the church. They are as follows: W. C. Weeks, F. A. Capps, Walker Echols, C. L. Knapp, C. S. Taylor, L. E. Tillery and Alex Vaught.

The Sunday School is in good working condition with Mr. A. C. Barnes as Superintendent, and Mrs. J. F. Wellington the superintendent of the Home Department, and Mrs. Walter Taylor superintendent of the Cradle Roll.

The Woman's Missionary Society with Mrs. W. M. Dugan as president; the Ladies Aid Society with Mrs. Mattie Rankin as president; a Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor Society with Mrs. M. E. McLagan, Senior, and Misses Zena Moore and Mattie Norman, Junior Superintendents. A Westminster Guild with Mrs. M. H. Cravens as president. The Boy Scouts are under the supervision of the pastor with Tom McAskill, patrol leader.

Since that time much has been done. Dr. S. M. Bennett remained the pastor for more than 20 years. During that pastorate the church prospered, erecting the present church and manse—yes and paying for them. Dr. Bennett not only built the buildings, but friendships which are as wide as the community itself. His interests were community interests, and the service he rendered was not merely to a local organization but to the Arlington community. Under his leadership the church grew in usefulness and service.

Three years ago the present pastor, Rev. John H. Patterson, came from Nebraska to take up the work. These three years have been happy years in the church. The organization has grown and many things have been accomplished. In material things, a major repair program was begun more than one year ago. After 20 years the church building needed painting. This done it was found that the roof must be replaced, the building repaired, the inside of the church re-finished. This work is now in progress and will be largely completed, and paid for, by our anniversary Day.

In observance of this Anniversary, a definite and extended program is planned. On April 6th the congregation will gather in a fellowship meal at the church. April 7th, Mr. Billy Muth of Fort Worth will present an organ recital on the Hammond Organ. On April 8th, at 18:00 Dr. S. M. Bennett will preach a Candle-Light Anniversary Service. The following Sunday will begin our Pre-Easter services in charge of the pastor with a Good Friday Communion Service. Then following Easter on April 19th the Fort Worth Presbytery will come to Arlington for their Spring meeting and a recognition of the half century which the Arlington Presbyterian Church has lived.

Friday April 1 Work On Transmitting Plant On Webb Road For Station KGKO Progresses Rapidly As 23 Miles Wire Laid

Work on the two 330-foot transmitting towers and the building for station KGKO which are being constructed a few miles south of town on the Webb Road are rapidly nearing completion. The station will be moved from Wichita Falls to Fort Worth and is scheduled to take the air May 1.

The studio for KGKO which is to be located atop the Medical Arts Building in Fort Worth is under construction.

The two transmitting towers rise higher than any building in Fort Worth. Each tower has five red lights, including a 31-inch high 1000 watt light on top that flashes at the rate of 40 times a minute. Every precaution is being taken to insure safety for airplanes. The towers are being lighted and painted to conform with the latest requirements of the airways division of the Department of Commerce. The towers will be painted in alternate stripes of orange and white.

The building is being constructed of light cream and is of modernistic design. It will be fireproof. In the center front will be the reception room where visitors can look through a glass and see the transmitting equipment in the operating room. In the south wing of the building is an efficiency apartment which is a combination bedroom, living room and dining room and kitchenette and bath. At the north end is the garage, shop equipment room and storage space.

The building will be heated by a central plant which will use fuel oil. Power will be obtained from the power company, but a private light plant is being installed in the well house to be used in case of emergency. If, at any time the power should go off, the local plant automatically starts and the lights will continue to burn on the towers and in the building. This the first station in this part of the country to take care of the airplane hazard in such a way.

Normally one man can operate the plant and he must be a licensed radio operator. The equipment which will be installed soon is the latest R.C.A. air cooled high fidelity 5000 watt transmitter.

Putting up a radio station is a tremendous job. There are so many details, everything must be just so, there is a complicated network of wires and then there are many regulations set up by the Department of Commerce that must be conformed to.

First of all a suitable site had to be selected. Salty marshy land is the ideal location for radio transmitting towers. There is no salt marshy land near Arlington and the next best thing is black marshy land. The present site was found after a lengthy search. Glenn D. Gillette, consulting radio engineer of Washington, D.C., who made the preliminary survey said that the present site was almost ideal, because water stands from 18 to 4 feet beneath the black ground. Sixty acres of land had to be purchased to get in the elaborate ground wire system. Over 23 miles of copper wire and over 3600 pounds of copper ribbon have been laid in the ground. A network of 6 inch wide copper wires come together under each tower and over this is laid a 64 foot copper screen.

To lay the wire in the ground a special plow was rigged up in an Arlington shop. The wire is fed through a pipe and laid as the furrow is plowed in the soft marshy land. Under each tower is 350,000 pounds of concrete. The towers are 31 square feet at the bottom and 2 square feet at the top are also supported by small porcelaine insulators. The steel work in each tower weighs over 22 tons.

Because of the water hazard the electric wiring for the towers is swung under the board cat-walk which connects the two towers with the building. At the base of each tower will be a little house in which will be the tuning units. The towers themselves are the radiating units.

KGKO will furnish the blue network of the National Broadcasting system to north Texas for the first time.

Atop the Medical Arts Building in Fort Worth will be three studio rooms and the control room. One of the studios will be one of the largest in this part of the country. The equipment being constructed for the station is incorporating the latest things known to accoustical science.

Friday April 8 Mrs. Dewey Brechenn Dies In Ft. Worth

Funeral services for Mrs. Dewey Brechenn, 37, former Arlington resident, were held Monday morning at the St. Patrick's Catholic church in Fort Worth with Father Ernest Langehorst officiating. Burial was in the Grapevine Cemetery.

Mrs. Brechenn died at her home on West First Street, Fort Worth, Friday night after an illness of several months.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Royce, and one daughter, Doris, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Harper of Greenville and three brothers and three sisters. Moore Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Friday April 15- Dr. J. W. Webb Dies At Home On East 1st.

Dr. J. W. Webb, 55, died at his home at 209 East First Street Friday morning., the 8th. His body was shipped to Hedley, Texas, their former home. Funeral services were held Saturday from the Methodist church, of which Dr. Webb has been a member for many years. The Masonic Lodge had charge at the cemetery.

For twenty years Dr. Webb had been practising medicine at Hedley, and they moved to Arlington in August. At first his daughter, Miss Theresa came down to keep house for Vernon, who is a student in NTAC, and for Max, a student in High School. Later Dr. Webb, his wife and twin daughters, Joyce and Gloria, came.

He has had a serious heart affection for the past four years, and during the holidays he had a severe attack and was ordered to bed for a year. However, after a trip to Marlin he felt better. Then a couple of weeks ago he went to Mineral Wells for a few days, returning on Monday prior to his death. On his return the family thought him much improved.

Dr. Webb was born December 26, 1882, graduated in medicine in Memphis, Tenn., and spent a number of years practising in Ardmore, Okla. He was a 32nd degree Mason. The body was sent to Hedley by the Luttrell Funeral Home. Miss Theresa and Vernon accompanied the body on the train, and other members of the family drove thru. They made good time to Quanah, but there they struck the heavy snow and followed the snow plows for miles. It took them sixteen hours to make the 300 miles.

The survivors are: his widow, and children, Theresa, Gloria, Joyce, Vernon and Max, all of whom were with him at the end; Mrs. Johnnie Lamberson, who with her husband and two babies have recently moved to the Watson community, and James who is now living in Amarillo.

Friday April 15 Burial Held For J. W. Morris, 101, Former Resident

Funeral services were held at a Fort Worth funeral home Saturday morning for J. W. Morris, 101, former Arlington resident, who died Thursday night at a private nursing home. Dr. S. M. Bennett conducted the service and burial was in the Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Morris had lived in Tarrant County for nearly 50 years. He moved to Fort Worth from Arlington about 2 years ago. While in Arlington he lived in a one room house near the South Side School where he tended his own garden and sawed his own wood.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

He went to the nursing home about 15 months ago because of his health, but he had been in comparatively good health and death came suddenly Thursday night. He was born on a flax plantation near Possumtrot, Va., the year Texas won her independence from Mexico.

Mr. Morris came to Texas in 1867 and settled in Panola County in East Texas. During his career he had been a railroad man, farmer, lumberjack and carpenter and until three years ago he was active as a gardener.

During the Civil War he fought with the Confederacy and was in the Battle of Shiloh. When President Lincoln abolished slavery his father freed 100 slaves. He had been a member of the Baptist Church for 83 years.

He is survived by two sons, E. D. Morris of Handley and R. C. Morris of Fort Worth; four daughters, Mrs. Ed Wood and Mrs. Bert Wolf of Fort Worth, Mrs. Edward Pharr of Dallas, and Mrs. C. F. Nelson, of Arlington; and 20 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Friday April 15 Rites Are Held For Mrs. Emma Burney At Baptist Church

Mrs. Shelton, Miss Thelma Shelton and Mattie Frances Tongue left immediately for Alvin. We extend to Mrs. Shelton and her family our heartfelt sympathy at this time.

Friday April 15 Rev. Bascom Thomas, 86, Retired Methodist Church Circuit Rider To Introduce Bill McCraw April 23

(picture of elderly gentleman sitting in buggy holding bible and reins)

Many is the time that Rev. Bascom J. H. Thomas of Arlington mounted to a buggy seat to take his message on a far-flung church circuit. The 86-year-old retired Methodist minister will address his largest audience on Saturday, April 23, when he introduces Attorney General William McCraw at a home-coming, which will launch McCraw's campaign for Governor. Arlington is the Attorney General's birthplace.

An old-time circuit rider, who before the turn of the century often spoke to only a handful under the shade of a post oak tree, next week here will address thousands more listening by radio.

He is Rev. Bascom J. H. Thomas, who came to Tarrant County in 1870 as a farmer and remained in Texas to carry the gospel to far-flung points.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Known and beloved by all Arlington, Brother Bascom was the unanimous choice of the committee appointed to select a pioneer to introduce Attorney General William McCraw at the home coming here April 23, which will launch his campaign for Governor.

"We picked Brother Bascom because the people have an affection for him and he has an equal affection for them." Mayor W. F. Altman, general chairman of the McCraw gathering said.

The retired minister's father, Henry L. Thomas, settled east of here and dubbed the community Arkansas Lane. The elder Thomas was a minister, too, preaching when he laid aside his farm work at the end of the week.

Shortly after his father established his Tarrant County home, the son arrived and took over management. Ten years later—in November 1880—Brother Bascom was ordained a minister in the Methodist church by Bishop George Foster Pierce.

His first assignment was the South Gabriel circuit which included the northeast section of Burnet County, the southeast of Lampasas County and the western part of Williamson County. Brother Bascom well remembers that a friend named James Elliott presented him with a horse to make that extensive circuit. Later he acquired a buggy.

"There were a lot of sheep ranches in that area," the clergyman recalled, "and we held our meetings in the open air. I preached under any good shade I could find and if the folks got industrious enough to build a brush arbor I was really pleased.

"Folks did the best they could in those days. They laid out the best they had at meal time and gave the preacher the best bed in the house. They paid me by a steward assessment and they not only paid it but lots of time overpaid. I remember the time later on when the ladies of a community brought me an overcoat. And you know the young fellows were not outdone and they bought me a fine dress suit to go with it."

From 1883 to 1884, Brother Bascom was at Colorado City and Big Spring. He likes to recall that first Sunday in December, 1883, when he arrived in Big Spring at 1 a.m. to find the railroad hotel full.

"I went from one place to another and even to saloons," he said. "I was wearing a long-tailed coat and striped breeches. Well sir, a fellow with a rattlesnake hatband was standing behind a bar in one of those saloons. He looked at me and said, "You're a gambler, ain't you?" "No, sir," I said, "I'm a Methodist preacher." You know that fellow was a fine heathen and finally arranged for me to sleep at a friends' house. I was the eighth man in four beds in a single room. The next morning the fellow that owned the place where I slept sent his wife and children out to round up the congregation. Several women came, and the country judge and a lot stood around on the outside edges. They wanted to get a look at the preacher who had been in saloons talking to gamblers and being mistaken for one."

Providence was with him at Marionfelt, now called Stanton, the minister remembered. There had been an extended drouth.

"And even though there were only a few folks there, I felt impressed to pray for rain," Brother Bascom said. "Then I announced another meeting for 3 p.m. Well sir, we couldn't hold that meeting on account of rain."

Did he ever encounter any trouble such as sometimes came to young preachers in those times?

Brother Bascom grinned. "I was stationed at Eastland from 1887 to 1889 and out at Gunsight a few of the boys made an effort. But they only made one."

Does he believe people are better or worse now than then.

He shook his head, "Brother, I'm afraid I'll have to say they ain't any better."

He deplores the passing of family prayer, of saying grace at meals and of holding revivals that were revivals.

Brother Bascom retired in 1900. He had married in 1886 at Baird and four years later he bought his father's Arkansas farm.

Even before he re-established his home at Arlington, Brother Bascom knew of the McCraw family through the Arlington Democrat which John B. McCraw, the Attorney General's father published at Arlington in the 90's. In those columns, the minister read the announcement of the younger McCraw's arrival on August 15, 1896.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Some years after Brother Bascom resumed his Tarrant County residence he was bereaved by Mrs. Thomas' death. To them were born 13 children, 12 of whom are still living. And Brother Bascom is proud that he still hears from all. One letter brought the news that a grandson had entered the ministry.

Still active enough to take walks of from four to six miles, Brother Bascom lives at the Arlington home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wright. Mrs. Thomas' picture has a prominent place there.

"But I never sit around and grieve," Brother Bascom said, "It's true that an idle mind is the devil's work shop. I try to keep busy. I'd like to be on my farm right now."

Services Are Held For R. J. Bennett At Presby. Church

Services for Robert James Bennett, 67, were held at the Presbyterian Church Monday morning with Rev. John H. Patterson and Rev. W. H. Cole officiating.

He died Saturday afternoon at 1:40 at his residence on West Abram Street. Mr. Bennett had been ill for the past two years, but he was, however, up much of the time and was confined to his bed just two weeks during the last illness. He attended the Presbyterian Church of which he was a member two weeks ago, but he grew worse that afternoon and was not able to be out again.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. R. J. Bennett; one son, A. F. Bennett of Davenport, Iowa; two daughters, Mrs. Bernard McGintz and Miss Irene Bennett of Moline, Ill.; four grandchildren, and 5 sisters, all of Boston.

Pallbearers were Bernice Turck, Ralph Harding, H. A. Stork, Frank Bates, S. R. Yates and J. O. Sanders. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

He was born in Boston, Mass. At the age of 13 he began learning the pipe organ business under his brother in law, but at the age of about twenty he went to Chicago to take charge of the piano department and later the organ department of Lyon and Healey's, one of the largest piano companies in the country.

Then still a young man he helped organize and headed the Bennett Organ Co., of Rock Island, Ill. Under the Bennett system over 10,000 pipe organs were built, and they were recognized as one of the best in the country. In "Our Lady of Sorrows Church" in Chicago is an organ made in the Bennett factory which was personally voiced by Mr. Bennett. This organ has been called by many organists over the country the sweetest toned organ in America.

In the Bennett home there are numerous autographed photographs of such imminent organists as Marcel Dupre, Quilmant, also a French organist of note and pupil of Dupre's who was presented by the Organists Guild of Fort Worth last winter and Clarence Eddy, one of America's best known artists.

When the depression came, feeling it in the East first, Mr. Bennett was urged to move the factory to Fort Worth and plans were nearly completed when financial affairs of the country became so precarious that Mr. Bennett himself feared to go on with the project and he voluntarily went into receivership, as have most of the organ companies throughout the country.

Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Mignon Stromberg of Fort Worth were married 7 years ago and they moved to Arlington in 1933 where they opened the School of Fine Arts. Mr. Bennett continued to do organ repair work and rebuilding of pipe organs almost up to the time of his death, even though he has been in poor health the past two years.

Friday May 6 Local Postoffice Will Celebrate Air Mail Event

Members of the staff of the Arlington postoffice will join with staffs of other postoffices in celebrating National Air Mail Week from May 15 to 21, it was announced this week by Postmaster Cliff Barnes.

Purpose of holding National Air Mail Week is to better acquaint the public of the speed and economy of using the air mail. Only three cents more than the regular three cent postage is needed to send a letter air mail, the postmaster pointed out.

Air mail letters may be sent from any postoffice.

The foreign air mail service has reached an especially high state of development. Daily one day air mail service connects Fort Worth with the principal cities of Canada. The rate of six cents per ounce provides air transportation within the United States and within Canada.

Several flights are made each week to the Latin American nations. Latest development is the trans-pacific air service by means of the famed China Clipper.

Slogan of the air mail service is: "Use domestic air mail for tomorrow's mail today. Use foreign air mail for next month's mail this week."

Friday May 13 Services Held For Fred J. Miller

Funeral services for Fred J. Miller, 60, who died Thursday night of last week in a Dallas hospital were held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Moore Funeral Home. Rev. John H. Patterson officiated and burial was in Parkdale Cemetery.

Survivors are his wife; a brother, Carl Miller of St. Paul, Minn.; sister, Mrs. Barard Wilkerson of Ceattle (Seattle?), Washington; son Fred C. Miller of Minneapolis, Minn., and a daughter, Dorothy.

Mr. Miller was born in Peru, Indiana and he made his home in St. Paul for many years before coming to Texas 17 years ago. The Millers moved to Arlington 5 years ago. They operated the Ramona Inn on the highway several years. Mr. Miller was a linotype operator. He had been in ill health for sometime, but he was able to be up a week prior to his death.

Friday May 13 "Dad" Wilson Dies At Son's Home In Handley

Friday May 13 Flem's Flam's By J. H. Flemister
R. F. D.

Like most newspaper men, I am going to write a book—next week, or sometime.

I have my subject—the rural mail carries. I thought of this when I read a story this week in a newspaper of the rural route carrier in Kansas who found a clock hanging on the mail box with a note attached reading, "please set". He did.

After a carrier has been on a particular route a few months most of his clients pretty muchly look upon him as a member of the family. Each day he generally finds at most boxes someone to meet him.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Naturally, out of thousands of rural route carriers, there are some who are a shade on the grouchy side—and none can blame them when some of the bad weather roads they must travel are considered. However, most of them are a friendly lot.

Few of the rural route carrier's clients are acquainted with the postal regulations that define the duties he must perform, and the requests from clients that he may decline at his own discretion. All of the route carriers I have ever known have gone far beyond the prescribed regulations in giving their clients service.

On a route of 200 boxes, the route carrier can generally expect that 195 of them are, sometime during any given week, going to ask for some extra favor or service not called for by the postal regulations. The carriers bat almost 1,000 per cent in granting these little favors that are small individual instances, but mount up in the total.

I once knew a rural route carrier whose route meandered its way through a section of poor East Texas tenant farmers. There, probably, weren't a half dozen car owners on his entire route. Most of his clients did their traveling by team and wagon.

The carrier died. I have seen more flowers at a funeral, but I can't recall seeing as many wagons.

He didn't leave very much of an estate, but I would say, off hand, his life was a success. The number of wagons at his funeral proved it.

IT'S POLITICS

Flem's Flam's

By J. H. Flemister

We are indebted to the Nolan County News at Sweetwater for the following expense account turned in by a candidate two years ago.

"Lost, 1,349 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost, two front teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated, a beef, four shoats and five sheep to a community barbecue. Gave away two pairs of suspenders, four calico dresses, $5 in cash and 13 baby rattlers.

"Chopped 132 acres of cotton. Kissed 126 babies. Walked 4,076 miles. Shook hands with 9,508 persons. Told 10,101 lies, and talked enough to make in print 987 volumes. Attended 16 revival meetings and was baptized four different times by immersion and twice some other way.

"Contributed $50 to foreign missions and made love to nine grass widows. Spent $106 dollars at box suppers. Hugged 49 old maids. Got dog bit 39 times—and was defeated."

Which brings to mind the story related by the Anson News of the East Texas judge who seemed to remain in office indefinitely. On being asked how he did it he answered:

"My opponents always carry a jug of liquor around the county when they are electioneering. Now, common sense will teach you a man will throw away his chewing tobacco when he takes a drink of liquor; so I just follow them up with a big supply of Brown Mule and replenish the drinkers' supply."

These stories seem fantastic and unreal, but they are no more fantastic than the reasons for which too many voters vote for far too many candidates—and the candidates, too often get elected.

FROME MURDERS BRING MORE PATROLMEN

The long stretches of West Texas highway, along one of which Mrs. W. G. Frome and her daughter, Nancy, were mysteriously killed, will be more closely guarded after June 1.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

State police announced that additional highway patrol substations will be set up in this area after 100 additional officers are graduated from a current training school. Only definite location for a post is at Van Horn, the town near which the Fromes were killed.

The additional officers will bring the patrol to a strength of nearly 300, Chairman W. H. Richardson of the Department of Public Safety said.

With this strength, he added, it is planned to remove enforcement of the truck load law from the patrol and place it in a newly created license and weight division of 30 men leaving other patrolmen charged primarily with law enforcement and traffic accident control.

Texas has more than 22,000 miles of highways which the state police attempt to patrol.

Friday June 10 Carter Hdwe. Builds Cooling System For Store

Carter Hardware and Electric Co. is air cooled by a system which the employees of the company built and installed.

The housing for the cooling system sets on a large iron platform at the rear of the store. The metal housing is 8 feet long, 5 feet high and 4 feet deep.

The system works on the evaporative cooling principle, as air is passed through the water and heat from the water evaporates cool the air. At the same time the dust is washed out of the air making it clean.

In the bottom of the housing is a tank which holds 80 gallons of water. A small electric motor pumps the water back and forth through the excelsior. A large blower fan pulls 5500 cubic feet of air a minute through the water and blows it in the store giving a complete change of air every 2 minutes and 45 seconds.

Approximately 20 gallons of water evaporate each day. Carters had a similar cooling system last year and the water bill never ran in excess. The system this year is much more elaborate and permanent than last year. The excelsior has to be changed about once a month.

Carters are building this type of cooling system for homes and stores and have them on display now.

Services Held For Mrs. F. V. Lawrence, Pioneer Resident

Arlington paid tribute to one of its pioneer citizens when funeral services were held Sunday at the Methodist Church for Mrs. F. V. Lawrence, 79.

Mrs. Lawrence, who died Thursday at 4 a.m. at the home of her son, Dr. O. V. Lawrence, in Brownsville, came here in 1876 and taught piano for 40 years.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor of the Methodist Church, officiated at the services. Burial was in the Arlington Cemetery, and the pallbearers were, Web Rose, Mike Ditto, Sanford Yates, Ray McKnight, Gordon Nichols and Zack Slaughter.

Mrs. Lawrence and her late husband, O. J. Lawrence, moved from Mansfield to a community called Hayter in the Spring of 1876. The Hayter settlement was about a mile east from here.

Mrs. Lawrence often recalled that the community had the daily mail brought by stagecoach from Dallas. It was later that year the Texas and Pacific Railway was constructed through the community to Fort Worth.

When the construction crew was stationed near her home, Mrs. Lawrence made biscuits and sold them to the workers.

"When the town was located, it was called Johnson but because it was so near Johnson Station, the name Arlington was chosen", Mrs. Lawrence once wrote. "My husband made the rack of pigeon hole boxes for the mail in the Arlington postoffice—the first used here."

Mrs. Lawrence was a charter member of the Methodist Church here, and she had served as president of Arlington Music Study Club for a number of years. Her husband and his late sister, Mrs. Mary V. Terrell, the first wife of Capt. J. C. Terrell, established one of the first subscription schools in Fort Worth. It was situated on East Belknap Street.

Mrs. Lawrence, a native of Shelby County, is survived by her son; three daughters, Mrs. Aileen L. Brown, Fort Worth; Mrs. H. L. Rudmose, Fort Wayne, Ind., Mrs. Schofield, Lockhart and a brother, E. Burrough of Canyon.

Moore Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Friday July 1 Mrs. Sadie Matthews Father Dies

Rev. R. W. Curry, 79, Justice of Peace at Mansfield and a superannuated Methodist minister, died at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at his home from a heart attack. He had been confined to his bed a week.

Rev. Curry came to Texas about 50 years ago from Tennessee, settling at Waxahachie and later to St. Paul, in the same county. He moved to Mansfield 10 years ago.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

During his active career as a minister Rev. Curry had held pastorates at many places in the Central Texas Conference, including Arlington, Cresson, Grapevine, Burleson, Mansfield, St. Paul, Hewitt, Morgan and Salado. He was a preacher for more than forty years.

He had been justice of peace for two terms.

Survivors are three daughters, Mrs. Sadie Matthews, Arlington; Mrs. M. J. Early, Bay City, and Miss Lou Curry, Mansfield; a son, W. N. Curry Jr., Louisville, Ky., and two brothers, Rev. J. T. Curry, San Antonio and G. L. Curry, Temple.

Friday July 1 Butch Proves That He Is A Smart Animal

This is the story of a smart Arlington dog.

The principal figure of the story is Butch, who is the handsome two-year-old well-bred German Shepherd of the R. T. McCarters.

A few Sundays ago Butch was unknowingly locked up in the greenhouse of the Cannon Nursery. Sometime later central called Miss Mary Ellen Cannon and told her that a dog seemed to be in trouble in the greenhouse. The greenhouse number was connected and Mary Ellen could hear Butch barking away.

Mary Ellen got in touch with the McCarters and Bob McCarter went to the greenhouse to investigate. He looked in the window and there sat Butch panting and barking into the overturned telephone. Bob watched him for a few minutes and he did not leave the telephone.

The telephone was on a table in the corner and Butch had never been seen to go near it while at the greenhouse. The telephone is the only thing that he had bothered the other Sunday.

Butch is an unusually smart dog and it is not hard to believe that he knew what he was doing when he knocked that phone over and barked into it.

Friday July 1 RITES FOR MRS. EMMA BRASELTON

Mrs. Emma Braselton, 67, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Wofford, Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. after several months illness.

Friday July 1 BLAZE THREATENS BUSINESS SECTION AGAIN THIS WEEK

For the second time in two consecutive weeks a part of the business section of Arlington was threatened with destruction by fire when the fire department answered a call Monday night in the A & P Store.

A stalled motor in an electrical refrigerator had just burst into flames when the fire department arrived. Fireman rushed through the building through breath stifling smoke and quickly extinguished the flames that were about to ignite a large stack of papers.

Damage was confined to some smoke damage and the crashing of two windows in the front doors through which the firemen entered to extinguish the blaze.

Last week the fire department answered a call to the Cannon Brothers paint store. Wednesday morning the department answered a call to the colored residential section. A roof had caught fire from a defective flue. The blaze was extinguished with little damage.

What's the Answer By Edward Finch
Why are three balls the sign of a pawnbroker?

The first pawnbrokers were from the famous Italian family of the Medici. The name Medici was derived from the medical profession and the family coat of arms was three golden pills. When the first loan office was opened for the purpose of lending money on goods which the banks would not accept as security, the Medici coat of arms was used as a business trademark and it has been maintained in its somewhat corrupted form of the three gilded balls.

FUGITIVES KIDNAP J. A. DAVENPORT TAKE CAR, MONEY

A relieved and astonished kidnap victim related to Arlington officers the details of a wild ride into East Texas Monday night when two desperadoes who claimed they were the pair who led the police in a running gun battle on the Fort Worth-Dallas pike last Saturday night abducted him as he waited beside his car near Death Crossing for friends coming on a bus.

The victim, J. A. Davenport, 55, has a truck farm and raises fruit about half a mile south of Death Crossing. Authorities are positive that his abductors were John Couch and James Otis Meredith, both ex-convicts and wanted in Kennett, Mo., for armed robbery of a farm, and assault with a deadly weapon. Chief Cribbs stated the belief that the fugitives are headed back to Missouri.

Davenport was waiting for the bus when two men suddenly appeared and asked directions to Dallas. After answering them he turned his back. Both confronters then drew guns and ordered him into the back seat of his car with one of the desperadoes while the other took the wheel and started for Dallas, making him direct them through Arlington over circuitous route so the car would not be recognized then on to the pike.

"I was wiping the windshield of my car when I heard someone call to ask if that was the right road to Dallas," Davenport said. "I told them it was and then asked if it was the shortcut road to Arlington. I answered that and turned my back on them to resume wiping my windshield when they both drew guns on me and said not to make any holler and get back in that car. I said, 'Hey, Fellows, what is the matter with you, anyway?' I had a peculiar sensation when I turned my back on them the first time."

The victim was forced to lie down in the rear, but near Grand Prairie he was allowed to get up with the orders that he would be shot if he stuck his arm out of the window or called for help. After reaching Dallas, they drove on what Davenport said he thought was Highway 67.

"While I was lying down in the car between the front and back seats with a pistol pressed against my head," Davenport related, "I told them I understood perfectly the whole thing and had sense enough to do what they told me. One of them said 'I hate to do this to you Dad but it is a life and death case with us. Don't you get us into a jam and tell us right where we are going.'"

"Then I explained to them who I was in answer to their questions. They asked why I was at the bus station, why were people coming in on the bus, where I lived and who with and what people would think when I failed to meet them or did not come back that night.

"At Grand Prairie and all other towns they were very careful to observe every traffic rule and were more careful than the ordinary driver. There was no cussing, no drinking and they were surprisingly nice to me. I told them I was not scared nor nervous and did not want them to be nervous or get me in to a jam. I explained that all three of us were already in a jam and that I wanted to save my life and my car if the latter was possible. I sold them on the fact I would not give them away, thereby gaining their confidence on such forced short acquaintance.

Continuing, Davenport said: "They asked if I wanted to know the truth about their trouble that started at Dallas. I said I did. They said they had a car and two girls. The girls had over $500 so they all decided to go to South Texas fishing. On the Highway 4 near Dallas they drove up to a drinking place where the girls wanted to dance. We told them we were too tired and dirty, but for them to go in and dance. They did so, but kept coming back to the car to talk to us. We told them to quit that as it would cause suspicion that the place would be robbed after the girls had furnished the information on the layout. They got in the car and we were all sitting there when the officers came up and began questioning us. We couldn't stand being frisked because we had guns so we decided to try to get away. The officers fired the first shot and we tore out. We sure liked to have piled up in a big wreck in Arlington. At a traffic light which we ran on red the cars were so thick we couldn't see any way through but we sat down on the horn and a lane opened up just barely big enough to get through. We sure were lucky there. They said the girls later got shot up and were in a hospital but did not say where.

They boasted that they would round up a gang of six and come back to this section to "mop up."

Davenport laughingly told Arlington authorities that he talked fast during every lag in the conversation because he did not want to discuss shooting at the moment. The driver appeared to be about 24, and the other about 20, he estimated.

The victim was commanded to undress about 12 miles from Bassett in Bowie county and his pleas to leave him his shoes were refused. Approximately a mile west of Bassett the fugitives stopped the car, took $4.11 from Davenport and ordered him out clothed only in underwear and socks. Saying they needed his car "for a trip," but not divulging where, the men drove off leaving Davenport to walk.

"They promised to leave me in Dallas before we got there and leave the car there that night. I was nervous in Dallas, afraid officers would recognize us and start shooting. They asked me how to get out of Dallas and I knew they knew the roads out. I told them I did not know the roads out. They bragged on my car and its good lights. We went through Greenville they parked in a loading zone but backed out and reparked when they discovered it. They asked if I was hungry. I told them no, I had no appetite but would like a Coca Cola. They called a Mexican and brought tamalas and cold drinks. We stayed there in plain view 20 minutes but saw no officers. They asked what kind of gas I used then hunted for a Gulf station. They questioned me about the gas gauge and how far the car would go before needing gas. I did not give an opinion as I hoped the car would run out of gas. They put in 12 gallons which settled that question for some time. They stopped at another filling station and I thought they were going to hijack it but they bought cigarettes as they were out after smoking up mine.

"They kept telling me they were going to let me out but we went through town after town without that happening. Finally they said they were going to do me a favor by letting me out. Said they were going to take my clothing and money. "That's sure sweet of you," I answered and meant it. 'What will you do?' they asked. 'I will phone home for money,' I replied, 'and you would do the same.' They took my purse, emptied it and handed it back.

"The one named Jack apologized to me 50 times. Said it was a mean thing they were doing to an old man. I asked them to leave me $1 but they refused. Then they again said they were going to let me out. 'Fine,' I replied, 'for I am getting tired.' They were surprised at my being tired when I explained that I was not accustomed to that kind of thing but they probably were and reminded them I was going through a great mental strain.

"They asked what time it was. I looked at my watch and they questioned me as to its value. I explained that it was a gift and worth not more than $1 to them for pawning, stating I knew they had more sense than to risk being caught for $1. They let me keep my watch. They told me to undress and asked about my cigarette supply and matches, one giving me 4 and the other two matches.

"Then they gave me the choice of being tied up or undressing. I chose undressing and told them it would be cruel to tie me up. The boy in front wanted me to have my shoes but the other one wanted them to wear as they were his size. They said they would drop my clothes a half mile up the road and I could get them but they failed to do that.

"As they let me out I thought probably they would shoot me so I took my time getting out. They shook my hand telling me goodnight. I told them to keep out of a jam and let me recover my car. They said they would unless they got into a fight with officers when the car probably would be wrecked. They kept shaking my hand like we were old friends and telling me good night so it took them a long time to go. As they left they said they would send me $100 later.

"I have been in every state in the Union and know most all the scenic spots of beauty in this country but when I was out of gun shot and saw my own car being taken by the bandits it was the most beautiful sight I ever saw. You can't imagine the relief I felt. I just sat down until they got around the curve out of sight. Then I went down the road trying to find my clothes. Over a small bridge I saw what I believed was a bundle but after creeping over stones, weeds and dewey grass with tender feet I only found an old paper. Cars passed and hollered to me but did not stop. One finally stopped and I told them I was in trouble and needed help but they just drove off. Walking into Bassett I got a lady to listen to my story. Mr. W. J. Johnson, Postmaster of Bassett and groceryman, opened his store, listened to my story and let me in to phone Arlington what had happened to me."

After relatives became alarmed at Davenport's failure to return home, Arlington and Fort Worth police were notified. About an hour late Davenport's call came through.

The Department of Justice and State Rangers are searching for the fugitives.

Mrs. Sallie Hayter Harrison Is Buried

On last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Sallie Hayter Harrison of Dallas passed out "beyond the horizon", after an illness that resulted in more than ten years of complete invalidism. Funeral services were held at Dallas and interment was in the Arlington cemetery, where her husband, J. B. Harrison and small son, Donald, are buried.

Mrs. Harrison was the youngest child of the late Rev. A. B. and Maria Hayter, and was born on the Hayter farm, now owned by the Waggoner interests. She received her education in the Mansfield College, under the late John Collier, and chose as her work one of the very few lines open to women at that time—music. She taught both piano and the stringed instruments in Arlington for many years.

After marrying Jones B. Harrison who was at that time in the hardware business here, they moved to Afton, Oklahoma, where they lived for a number of years, and then moved to Waxahachie, and finally to Dallas. After her husband's death she continued to make her home with her son, Charlie, until less than a year ago when for her comfort she was put in a nursing home.

Mrs. Harrison, wherever she lived was always active in the cultural life of the community, her sweet, gentle radiance gained for her the love and admiration of her associates. The comment of some of the business men of our town whose lives were touched by hers in their early years were "I have never known such a sweet, lovely person as Miss Sallie Hayter." Her three boys were a joy to her throughout the years and their training and education was of paramount importance to her. She is survived by her three sons, all of whom were here for the funeral. Charlie of Dallas; Kenneth of Big Springs and Shannon of Lafayette, La.

Friday September 2 Mrs. Emma Wheeler's Mother Dies

Funeral services were held Monday at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church for Mrs. Katherine Dankelf, mother of Mrs. Emma Wheeler, with Rev. J. H. Patterson and Dr. S. M. Bennett officiating.

(Mrs. Dankelf) was 80 years old and died Sunday at her daughters home. About nine months ago (Mrs. Dankelf) fell and had not been able to be up since. She was born in Switzerland. She lived in Fort Worth for many years and came to Arlington some 10 years ago to make her home with her daughter Mrs. Emma Wheeler.

(Mrs. Dankelf) lived quietly within the domain of her own home. She appreciated company and was always full of gratitude for the nice things done for her by friends. Both of the preachers conducting the funeral services, paid high tribute to Mrs. Wheeler for the consistent attention and care she had given her mother throughout her illness.

Other survivors are a brother, John Habluetzel Sr., Galveston; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Wolf, Galveston, and Mrs. M. Schwatner and Miss Anna Zulk, both of California, three grandchildren, Marvin Wheeler, Fort Worth, Olen Wheeler, Arlington, and Mrs. Sophronia Wymer, Pawtucket, R. I., and five grandchildren.

Friday September 9 Mrs. Danklefs Dies At Daughters Home

Mrs. Katherine Danklefs, better known to many as Mrs. Henry Wheeler's mother, died August 28 at the home of her daughter in Arlington with whom she had lived for the past 12 years.

Mrs. Danklefs was born in Schaffhausen, Switzerland, March 8, 1858. She came to Galveston in her early years where she married Arthur Mack. They had two small children when he died in 1888. Later she married again and in 1896 she moved to Fort Worth where she was in the restaurant business until 1902 when she purchased a farm north of Handley, on what is now known as the Randol Mill Road. In 1917 her son died unmarried. In 1926 Mrs. Danklefs fell and broke her hip. She then came to live with her only daughter, Mrs. Henry Wheeler.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

She lived very quietly, but was appreciative of company and was always full of gratitude for the little things said and done for her. For the past 46 weeks she was confined to her bed, but she was always cheerful and thankful, and patient through all her suffering.

Both pastors conducting the service paid tribute to her daughter Mrs. Wheeler, for the consistent attention and care she gave her mother throughout her illness. Mrs. Danklefs only brother from Galveston and his daughter were at her bedside when the end came. She is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. Anna Zulk, Daly City, California, Mrs. Mary Wolf, Galveston and Mrs. Magdalena Schwautner, San Francisco. Beside her daughter, she leaves, three grandchildren: Olen and Marvin Wheeler and Mrs. Sophronia Weymer and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in the Arlington Presbyterian Church with Rev. J. H. Patterson and Dr. S. M. Bennett officiating. Interment was at the Isham Cemetery with Luttrell Funeral Home in charge. Pallbearers were Don Yankee, Johnnie Lubke, David Miller Jr., Sam Barr, Jess Wheeler and J. A. Wheeler.

Friday September 9 Capt. Shauer Speaks To Arl. Teachers On Safety Education

Capt. Shauer of the Safety Division of the State Highway Department addressed the faculties of the three Arlington public school Wednesday afternoon at the High School.

(The following is the last paragraph of the news article.)

He said that the Arlington Police Department was to be commended for being the first city in the state to have a drunkometer. Last month 97 out of 117 accidents were caused by drunk drivers. Last year in one county there were 38 cases for drunk driving and only 3 convictions. The drunkometer makes convictions impelling. Children must be taught that drunk drivers are responsible. He believes that the people do not believe that they are responsible and that is one reason that there are not more convictions. He told the teachers that the solution to traffic accidents lies in the greatest part with them. He introduced Cribbs who showed the group pictures of accidents on Texas highways.

Friday September 9

Rotary Club Hears Talk On Leather

Capt. C. C. Mason, president of the Rotary Club, who has been teaching in Austin, presided at the meeting last week and told the Rotarians that he was delighted with the attendance record made while he was away. Out of the 172 clubs in this district the Arlington club ranks 19th. The average attendance for the month of August was 96.77 and there was one 100 per cent meeting during the month. The average attendance for August was an improvement over July.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Secretary Sam Wine gave the first reading for membership for W. Ross Wimbish, Public Schools.

Wine introduced Mr. Tandy of Fort Worth who is in the leather business and he gave a talk on "The Romance of Leather". Mr. Tandy illustrated his talk throughout with pieces of leather. He said that his hobby was his business.

The speaker said that nothing has taken the place of leather and that nothing ever would. Everyone uses leather, perhaps a hundred times a day in different ways. No matter where people are on the face of the globe they use leather.

He likened the tanning of hides to the canning of peaches to preserve them. All kinds of leather are not raised in the United States, and it would be impossible to raise them all here.

The finest hides come from Argentina and other places in South America. The hides from these countries are clean and clear as there are no heelfly grubs or barbed wire fences there. Heelfly grubs always get in the best leather in this country. Often brands practically ruin hides. It is impossible to sew through a brand or a barb wire scratch as it breaks the needle.

Oxen hides are gotten from the old country as oxen are numerous there and they are large. Texas branded hides are used for soles, harnesses and belts.

Good calf skins are gotten from dairy herds. The hides of calves that are turned on grass become coarse. The finest calf skins are tanned in Warsaw, Poland. There are not enough calf skins in the United States and so hides are imported.

Every leather has its own peculiarity and use. This country excels in tanning goat skins. Goat skins are sent here tanned and then dyed. Goat skins dye any color. Vici kid is used for practically all ladies shoes.

Sheep are raised in all countries and they are the cheapest leather and also the poorest. Sheep skins are smooth and easy to work with.

The British control the number of kangaroos killed in Australia. They hire shooters who must shoot the kangaroos in the head or else they lose their jobs. All kangaroo leather has flea bites in the hide. Kangaroo hides cannot be dyed red or green. The price of kangaroo hides remains the same as the British control the number killed. They are sent to the United States as they are needed. This country uses more kangaroo hides than any other country.

Horsehide is the softest leather. It is the only hide that will stretch two ways, and it is the only leather that can be used for baseballs. The leather of every animal is used for some particular purpose.

There are 1800 kinds of snakes. All reptiles have tough hides and wear long in shoes. Snake skins can be perfectly imitated with calf skins, except the feel. Mr. Tandy illustrated his point with reptile skins and calf skins that had been made to look like reptile. The only difference was that they felt different. Americans take calf skins and imitate all kinds of leather.

He exhibited a piece of walrus hide over one inch thick which is used for polishing. In the last 10 years the use of shark skin for the tip of shoes has developed.

All pig skins are obtained from foreign countries as pigs are not skinned in the United States. The number of alligator hides found in Louisiana lead the country.

The only bird which produces leather is the ostrich. Among the many hides shown was an ostrich hide. Deer hides are not adaptable to the shoe industry. An oddity of the leather business is that no animal produces fur and leather.

Friday September 16 Carter Installs 2 Color Neon Sign

Installation of a large two color neon sign at Carter Hardware and Electric Company was completed this week. "Carter's" in brown letters stand out at the top of the sign. "For Everything" is in brown letters on a tan background and just underneath is "Hardware, Electrical and Sporting Goods" in tan letters on a brown background

The word "Carter's" is neon and the entire bottom of the sign is neon as well as the end of the sign. The sign is one of the largest and most attractive in Arlington.

Stock inside the store has been rearranged and some new show cases have been added. The show cases are electrically lighted.

Friday September 23 Services Held For W. C. Wiley

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Christian Church for W. C. (Sally) Wiley, assistant fire chief, with Rev. N. L. Keith officiating, assisted by Dr. S. M. Bennett, Rev. Kermit Melugin and Rev. Pat Henry, Jr., of Dallas.

A motorcycle escort was furnished by state highway patrolmen. Burial was in Parkdale cemetery with Moore Funeral Home in charge.

Mr. Wiley died Saturday night in a local hospital of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Upon arriving at the city hall Saturday night he talked to Policeman Linton Lovell and Jake Swafford in front of the Hall, and asked the whereabouts of Policeman M. C. Dalby. He then went to the police room and answered the phone a few times.

In a few minutes Lovell heard a shot and ran upstairs where he found Wiley with a wound in his head. A pistol belonging to Constable Tom Lee had been taken from a desk drawer. He died about fifteen minutes later.

Mr. Wiley was born November 9, 1910, in Big Springs. The Wiley family moved to Arlington a few months later. He attended the North Side school and Arlington High School. Before obtaining employment with the city he worked at Coulters Drug Store the Gas Company and at the Arlington Lumber Co.

He began his work with the city about eight years ago in the water department. He had been with the fire department the past four years. He had attended a number of the State Fire Training Courses held at A. & M. College.

On October 16, 1936, he married Miss Winifred Williams. His son was a year old in August. Other survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Wiley; a sister, Miss Loretta Wiley, and a brother, Frank L. Wiley of Wichita Falls.

He had a great many friends among the small children as well as the older people of the town.

Friday September 23 Clark Brower Has Scary Experience

While Clark Brower, rural mail carrier, was delivering the mail Wednesday morning and traveling on the narrow, little used road between the Felder House, south of town, and the Kennedale Highway, he noticed something in the rut of the road.

Thinking that it was a sack and perhaps full of old cans, he pulled out to the side to pass. As he passed he glanced back and there was a baby in the road rut. He jumped out of the car and saw that the baby's eyes were shut and thought that she might be dead. As he reached her she opened her eyes and sat up.

About 150 yards down the road was a house and so he honked his horn and yelled at the woman living there. The baby was hers and had wandered from the house and gone to sleep in the road rut with her rag doll beside her.

The baby was over a year old and Clark said that if she hadn't been lying with her feet toward him as he approached he might have been able to have told that it was a baby. Also, the rut was quite deep and he couldn't see her clearly.

Clark is still worried about how easy it would have been to have run over her, and is thanking his lucky stars that he decided to go around the object in the road which he thought a paper sack.

Friday September 30 Dallas Purchases Drunk Testing Machine

A drunk testing machine like the one that the Arlington Police Department has been using is being (purchased) by the City of Dallas.

Linton Lovell, Texas representative for the company which manufacturers the machine, Chief of Police Ott Cribbs and Dr. P. N. Nesbitt were in Dallas last night where the machine was demonstrated.

A drunk testing machine has been used by the Arlington Police Department for some time, and has proved very successful. The machine checks the amount of alcohol in the blood by a simple test which definitely proves whether a person is drunk or not.

The machine analyses the air exhaled by the patient to determine the amount of alcohol in the blood and then checks the figure by urinalysis. It will cost $87.50 and the cost of operation is practically negligible.

Captain Shaurer, head of Safety Division of the State Police, recently spoke in Arlington praising the drunk testing machine. About two-thirds of the highway accidents are caused by drunk drivers, and he believes that this could be greatly decreased if all police department had some means of definitely proving that a person is drunk. Very few convictions are obtained in drunk driving cases as the person usually claims that he has had only a couple bottles of beer.

Friday September 30 J. W. Borden Dies In Austin

J. W. Borden, 98, died Saturday at noon at the Austin Confederate Home for old soldiers. His death was from a fall which broke his hip Friday.

Mrs. Borden, who had been visiting here for the past two weeks with her son, E. E. Denton and family, on learning of Mr. Borden's injuries, left immediately for Austin.

E. E. Denton and son, Earnest Jr., left Saturday afternoon for Austin to attend the funeral.

Mr. Borden had lived here in Arlington for a number of years before going to Austin and prior to this time he had spent practically all of his life in Fort Worth. He served in the Civil War four years.

Mr. Borden was highly respected here by his many friends.

Friday September 30 Mrs. G. A. Percifield's Mother Dies

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cross and Joe and Ned.

Friday October 14 Services Held For Mrs. Lou Turck

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Baptist church for Mrs. Jenne Lou Turck, pioneer resident of Tarrant County, with Rev. Kermit Melugin, assisted by Rev. L. T. Fagan, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Grand Prairie, officiating.

A quartette from the Grand Prairie church sang "Rock of Ages," "never Grow Old," and "Beautiful Land." Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery. Pallbearers were Sam Parker, Clarence Lowe, Roy Watkins, Hugh Smith, Elery Mayfield, and Brantley Henshaw. Luttrell Funeral Home and He. E. Barker were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Turck died at 10:15 p.m. Sunday. She had been in ill health for the past year, but continued to be active in the affairs of the Grace Chapel community where she had lived for the past 45 years. She became quite ill a week ago last Sunday.

She is survived by her husband, Lou Turck; one son, Roland Turck of Grand Prairie; three sisters, Mrs. J. G. Gibson, San Antonio, Mrs. D. Patterson, Mansfield, and Mrs. J. C. Fletcher, Fort Worth; and a brother, C. M. Coleman.

Mrs. Turck was born in Mansfield and would have been 64 the 13th of this month, and she would have been married 45 years the 30th of next month. She had lived in the Grace Chapel community ever since her marriage. She had lived in the same location, about one and one-half miles south of town, for the past 33 years.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

Mrs. Turck belonged to most of the clubs in the Grace Chapel community and was one of the most beloved members of the community. Her main interests were visiting the sick and working in the Grace Chapel Home Demonstration Club.

She was always willing to do more than her share in any undertaking and to know her was to love her.

Friday October 14 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to every one who was so kind to us during the illness and death of our dear wife and mother. May God's richest blessing rest on each of you.

L. S. Turck.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Turck.

Friday October 14 GRACE CHAPEL Elizabeth Thomas

This community was saddened Monday morning when news was received that Mrs. Lou Turck had passed away Sunday night. Mrs. Turck had many friends. To know her was to love her. We extend our sympathy to Mr. Turck and Roland.

Friday October 14 JOHNSON STATION Mrs. Tyler Short

We extend sympathy to C. M. Coleman in the loss of his sister, Mrs. Lou Turck, who died Sunday. Mrs. Turck had a host of friends in this community who grieve at her passing.

Friday October 14 EULESS Mrs. Cannon

The community joins the Ed Cramer family in their grief in the recent death of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Cramer, better known here as Grandma Cramer, who lived the greater part of her life in this community, but for the past few years she had made her home with her daughter in Lindsey, Oklahoma, where she died last week. She was buried here Saturday.

This entire neighborhood was grieved to learn of the tragic death of one of our small school boys.

J. P. Norris, 8 years old, climbed a steel tower which carried an electric power line, and was burned beyond recognition. The child was a first grade student, and the school especially the primary division has never experienced such a tragic picture.

Friday October 28 Mrs. W. T. Bondurant And Casey Jones Who Became Immortal Were Childhood Playmates

Mrs. W. T. Bondurant and "Casey" Jones were childhood playmates and they attended the Rural Academy together. "Casey" Jones, the railroad engineer who died heroically on April 20, 1906, has become immortal through legend and song.

It was in Cayce, Kentucky, that Mrs. Bondurant and John Luther Jones spent their childhood days and that it was from the name of this small town that "Casey" Jones nickname was derived.

Mrs. Bondurant states, "On the night of the fatal run, Casey was driving the famous Cannon Ball and Sim Webb, the colored fireman, was stoking it, when the engine ploughed through the caboose of a freight train, through two carloads of grain and into a car of lumber.

"Casey" was found dead with his hands still clutching the brake but the passengers in the 12 coaches behind were unhurt."

Unveiling of a marker, a replica of Casey's famous Cannon Ball, to the memory of Casey Jones that was witnessed by 2,000 in Mrs. Bondurant's home town recently.

Mrs. Bondurant was born and reared, and so were all of her children and a grand child in the same house that her mother was born and reared in, near Cayce, Ky.

Friday November 18 WISE, UNWISE and OTHERWISE By S. Luther Perry

The following is self-explanatory and we did not think there was anyone in Arlington mean enough to do such a thing as is described by Major Brown as follows:

Nov. 14, 1938 – When we went out to our barn this morning to milk our cow we found that some one had been there first and that our cow had been milked by a plain common thief and a number of bundles of our delicious hegari feed had been stolen.

If you will kindly print this, Mr. Editor, as a matter of common community interest, I would like to say to that party that if he, she or it, will kindly call at my house, if they are that hard up for cream and breakfast foods I will save them, he, she or it, the trouble of the exertion of milking, as me or my boys one will milk the cow for them and give them the milk and I will also throw in a bale of hay for their breakfast food, as I feel that a fellow that hard up for milk, that he, she or it, will steal it from a family of children that also need it, should eat hay for his, her or its breakfast food every morning. No questions will be asked, as I wouldn't embarrass them for the World.

Friday November 18 WORLD EVENTS THIS WEEK By DeForrest

(edited) At a time when steady level-headed men are needed in a rocking world, the death of Kemal Attaturk, president of Turkey, will be a severe blow to residents of the Near East.

Though nominally president of the Turkish Republic he was actually a dictator, and to his personal bravery, military ability and political good judgment is attributed the progress which Turkey has made in the past twenty years.

A defeated ally of Germany in the World War, Turkey seemed ended at the finish of that struggle. But Kemal reorganized the country, repelled invading forces, abolished the caliphate and exiled the Sultan, formed a republic and moved the capital from Constantinople (now Istanbul) inland to Ankara where it would be safe from the guns of any foreign fleet.

From this new capital in the heart of old Turkey he instituted amazing reforms, including abolishment of harems and legal polygamy. He forbade the wearing by men of the fez and by women of the veil, insisting upon westernized costumes. He gave Turkey a Latin alphabet and made the Sick Man of Europe into a real power.

His old friend Ismet Inonu has been elected as president to succeed him, but it remains to be seen whether he will ever be able to take the place of Turkey's greatest leader since Mohmoud I. And Turkey is located at the most strategic spot on earth.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

== From Japanese sources in China comes word of further advances up the Yangtze river above Hankow, while from the Chinese comes word of an impending attempt to try to recapture Canton.

== In Spain the rebels, who have recently received supplies of war materials from Italy, including many tanks of an entirely new design and much heavy artillery, have made considerable headway in their campaign along the Ebro river. Nearer the coast, government forces have made some progress on the Segre river, but nothing of a decisive nature has occurred, and all other fronts remain quiet.

== From Germany this week comes word of the most barbarous campaign against Jews that the civilized world has ever witnessed. Following the death of Ernst Von Rath, third secretary at the German Embassy in Paris, who was fatally shot by a 17 year old Polish Jew refuge, the Nazis determined that every Jew in Germany should be made to suffer for his act, and the German hoodlums, without any interference from the police forces, proceeded to write one of the dirtiest pages in Teutonic history.

J. O. CRAWLEY, NTAC EMPLOYEE FOR 20 YEARS, DIES AT HOME

The funeral of Joseph O. Crawley, 68, who was in charge of building constructions at NTAC, was conducted at 2:30 p.m., Saturday by Rev. J. H. Patterson and Dr. S. M. Bennett at the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful music was provided by a quartet composed of Miss Christine Jones, Mrs. W. L. Hughes, H. H. Payne and Frank Payne, with Mrs. J. B. Preston at the piano and Mrs. H. H. Payne at the organ.

Pallbearers were Dean E. E. Davis, G. E. Luttrell, E. M. Rogers, Gordon Nichols, Clint Kendall, and Edward Rankin. The burial was in the Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Crawley, who has been employed at the college for 20 years, died Friday morning at his home.

Joseph Oakley Crawley was born in Salem, Tenn., on November 13th, 1870, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Crawley. As a young man he came to Texas in 1893 and located in Arlington. His work was that of a carpenter and building contractor.

During the second year he lived here, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Thomas came to Arlington from Alabama to visit in the home of Aunt Sally Thomas. The young couple met, and the following year Mr. Crawley went to Sycamore, Alabama, and brought Miss Thomas back as his bride.

Here the young couple settled where they have since lived. To them were born three children, Cecil Shuford, James Marion, and Mildred Stella, all of whom were educated in the Arlington schools and with the exception of Cecil who lives in Beaumont, make their homes with their families in Arlington.

The first summer here, Mr. Crawley united with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church (as it was then known) and has since maintained his membership in the Arlington Presbyterian Church. In his line of work as a builder he did the wood work on the present church building, and demonstrated his skill by cutting every piece of material on the ground that went into the construction of the dome of the Church. His friends told him they would never fit, but they came into place perfectly.

He took an active interest in the civic affairs of the community serving as Alderman and Fireman for many years. He laid the first brick pavement around the well at Center and Main Streets.

Through the years he has been associated with the College here in Arlington one way or another. He helped build the first building that housed the College when it first started in Arlington. Then when the State took over the school he was employed as Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings. This office he held until his death. In this capacity he supervised the construction of the Gymnasium, the tunnels for the central heating plant, and many of the smaller buildings of the present college campus.

Six months ago his health failed and he was confined to his home throughout the summer. He returned to his work in September, but his strength failed him again and after a month's service he was again forced to bed.

His death ended 45 years of useful service in this community.

The large floral offering and the many friends present indicated the high esteem with which he was held in this community, and also the sympathy extended to his wife and family in the passing of a good man and a useful citizen.

Mr. Crawley is survived by his wife; two sons, Cecil S. Crawley, Beaumont, and Jim Crawley, Arlington; a daughter, Mrs. Royce Christopher, Arlington; four grandchildren, Patsy Marie, Elizabeth Ann and Jim Crawley, Jr., and Sara Beth Christopher; a brother, Bella Crawley, Los Angeles; one half brother, Robert Crawley, Chattanooga, Tenn.; a sister, Mrs. Sid Wiley, Arlington; two half sisters, Mrs. Dora Stowers, Shelbyville, Tenn., and Mrs. Ella Bate, Fayetteville, Tenn.

Dorris Hendricks, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hendricks, was fatally injured at 8:45 a.m. Tuesday, near Sublett School, six miles south of here when a passing car struck him on his bicycle.

Dorris, a pupil in the sixth grade at the Sublett School, was on his way to school when the accident occurred. The car was driven by D. P. Wilson of Mansfield. They were both going north and Mr. Wilson blew his horn as he started past. His wife who is a teacher in the Sublett School was with him. Dorris' parents live on a farm just south of the Sublett School.

Survivors are the parents; two brothers, Joe Edward and Ruel, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hendricks and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Isom.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Church of Christ, with Rev. N. D. Black, assisted by Rev. H. T. Brannon and Rev. S. M. Bennett, officiating. Burial was in the Arlington Cemetery. Luttrell Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Paul Norvel, Mr. Powell, Haul Barnes, Alvin Bruner, Jack Booth, and Julian Swafford. Honorary pallbearers were Bobby Rhoden, Sonny Bradley, Billy Bardin, Tommy Roy, Jimmy Barber, Gene Kelly, Marvin Young and Clayton Young.

Mutual Insurance Racket In Texas Arthur T. Bridges

The other day my good friend, Pat Yarborough, brought me a policy for inspection which some fellow had gotten off on him with a down payment of three dollars. Upon reading it carefully he decided to send it back to the company as a gift, and suggested that, since I had a "typing outfit" we fix up a suitable letter to send along with it. Here is the letter, which gives a true picture of the situation just as it was:

Arlington, Texas
Nov. 8, 1938

Blank Insurance Co.
Dallas, Texas
Gentlemen:

I am returning herewith the policy you sent me. You may use it to light a fire some cold winter night if you wish and need it for such, as perhaps you do.

I understood that I was buying insurance that was good for what it was written for but find that the value of the policy, even if kept in full force, might dwindle to fifty cents or even less.

I also understood that there would be a stipulated premium base which would be subject to assessments only in rare instances. On the contrary I see that you may assess me whenever you see fit and furthermore that you may raise the amount of assessments on me at any time and to an unlimited extent as YOUR NEED may demand—perhaps every time you buy a new car, take a trip to Europe, or buy another oil well for yourself.

You state that you are organized and operate under the laws of the State of Texas. Common sense on the part of Texas life insurance buyers should put you out of business before next week with a pain in your stomach, but if Texas does have enough lunatics to keep you running I think there should be some kind of a law to protect them from such a nefarious racket as this.

Yours very truly,
P. D. Yarbrough
c/o Texas Life Insurance Commis.

Note: There are over three thousand such companies as this doing business in Texas today.

SLAUGHTER OPENS FIRST FORD AGENCY IN ARLINGTON
HIETT PURCHASES FIRST FORD IN 1909

(two pictures—1909 and 1938)

On the left is Will Hiett, who bought the first Ford in Arlington in 1909 and on the right is Zac Slaughter who opened the first Ford agency in Arlington and sold his first car to Hiett.

Will Hiett and Zac Slaughter of Pirie-Slaughter Motor Co., of which Slaughter and Happy King are owners, have had an unusually great interest in the changes that have taken place in Fords for the past 20 years as Will Hiett bought the first Ford in Arlington and Zac Slaughter opened the first Ford agency in Arlington and sold his first car to Mr. Hiett.

Hiett bought his first Ford on a Saturday in 1909 and this month he purchased his 17th Ford. He kept his first car in a blacksmith shop on the corner of Abram and Center until he learned to drive it.

The ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1938

He considered that car a beauty and a wonder even though there was only a wide open space on the right side for a door and no opening at all on the side by the steering wheel. Long straps from the top to the front of the engine held the top on. The tires were 30 by 3 and the kind that simply fitted on to the rim. If the air in one became low it would roll right off of the wheel. On the left hand running board was a brass tank which contained kerosene for the front lights. There was no tail light. Hiett kept a lantern in the back of the car so that when the kerosene was all gone he could light the lantern and hang it on the front of the car. Hiett even bragged to fellow townsmen how his car would do 15 miles an hour at top speed although the thing was practically shaking to pieces when it reached that terrific momentum.

About the time that Slaughter moved his Ford Agency from the building now occupied by the Texan Theatre and Perkins Cleaner where he had started in the Ford business to the present Caton Variety Store Building, Mr. Hiett purchased another Ford car. That was in 1911 and Hiett's new car accomplished the unheard of feat of making it from here to Dallas in one hour and that included going up Chalk Hill in low. He actually made 20 miles an hour and everyone talked about him making passenger train time.

Only part of the Dallas Highway was gravelled and the only other strip of gravelled road in Tarrant County was a one mile strip on the Mansfield Road which was gravelled as a test road. People who had cars very seldom ventured out in them at night as it was far too dangerous. Gasoline was bought by the barrel and because people were afraid of it, was kept as far away from the house as possible.

In 1914 Hiett bought the first Ford sedan from Slaughter that was bought in Arlington and everyone thought that he would get killed because he had glass in his car and they told him that it was top heavy and that it was sure to turn over.

In 1916 Hiett, Charlie Brower, E. E. Rankin and George Luttrell took a never-to-be-forgotten fishing and hunting trip to Colorado in Hiett's Ford that took them 2100 miles. The first day they left at daybreak and that night, 14 hours later, found them at Vernon. The second day, dark came 20 miles the other side of Amarillo, 180 miles from Vernon. It took them five days to get to Colorado and they averaged 180 miles a day. They had 1100 pounds of weight in and on the car.

When the going got so steep that the 1916 Ford refused to move Luttrell, Brower and Rankin would pile out of the car and proceed to push. Many times they walked or pushed to reach their destination. One of the big thrills of the trip was pushing the car over the top of Lavita Pass which is 14,000 feet above sea level. The road was a one way road and they would have to pull completely out of the road to let someone pass.

During the 2100 mile trip which took over a month 50 cents was all that was spent on repairs and that was for a platinum point which was put on by a blacksmith in Colorado.

Hiett paid $865, delivered, for his first Ford and he says that might seem high considering the looks of what you got, but that Ford gave good service and that the 17 Fords which he has had since them have continued to give good service, although each one is far better than the last.

SUBLETT

Annie Leath

The entire community was saddened when Dorris Hendrick was struck and fatally wounded as he was riding his bicycle from the Sublett Store to the Sublett School Nov. 22 by the car of Mr. Wilson of Mansfield. Mr. Wilson was bringing his wife to the Sublett School where she teaches. Dorris had passed a group of children walking and Dorris swerved his bicycle in front of the car. Mrs. Neal, the primary teacher was sitting in her car and saw the accident. She and Mr. Wilson rushed Dorris to the Arlington Hospital, but he was dead when they reached the hospital.

Mrs. Wilson was taken to her home and had to remain in bed under a doctor's care the rest of the day. She stated that she had been so careful to warn the children of the highway and had been afraid some of them would get hurt but didn't think she would be the one to do it. School was dismissed Tuesday morning for the remainder of the week.

Dorris is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hendricks; two brothers, Joe Edward and Ruel; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hendricks and Mr. and Mrs. Isom.

Friday December 9 In Memory Of Dorris Hendricks

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hendrick and sons, Joe Edward and Ruel in the loss of their son and brother, Dorris, who was killed Nov. 22, 1938, when his bike which he was riding to school was struck by a car driven by Mr. Wilson of Mansfield.

Dorris was born Jan. 16, 1927 at Sublett. He had spent his life there. He was a student of the Sublett grade school. To know him was to love him.

Dorris was a willing little helper to his parents. As there were no sisters, he took special interest in his mother's work. And he was a real pal to his daddy.

He was overwhelmed with joy when he undertook some task and came out victorious, and someone would say, "good work."

Now God has said "Thou well done the faithful little servant, enter Thou into the Kingdom of rest."

Dorris was a lover of flowers. He took great pain in his flower garden and thought the Hollyhock among the most beautiful of flowers. He often spoke of his hollyhock in his childish, boasting way.

His little grave was a flower covered mound.

May the departure of this little one not shake our faith, but draw us even closer to the God who gave us life.

Besides his parents and brothers, Dorris left a host of friends and loved ones to mourn his going.

The following poem was composed and written to the memory of this friend:
(There follows a long poem not transcribed.)

Friday December 16 N.T.A.C. Now Million Dollar Institution

Col. Irons was received as a new member into the Philosophical Club Wednesday noon when an excellent dinner was enjoyed by all which was prepared by the ladies of the Christian Church.

It was voted to have the meeting next Wednesday as usual, as most of the members will be able to attend.

Ray Luttrell, chairman of the program committee, introduced the speaker of the day, J. E. Hudspeth, who chose for his subject the history of N.T.A.C. which he said is now known to be a million dollar institution, according to the financial report just issued.

Mr. Hudspeth's speech on the past history of N.T.A.C. was in part as follows:

An election was held in Arlington in 1894 which resulted in the creation of an Arlington College with F. M. Hammond at the head for the first 4 years. W. M. Trimble was associated with him.

Fifteen five-year scholarships were sold at $500 each, with Hammond and Trimble donating $500 each and in that way $5000 was available for building purposes.

? F. Thomas and Bailey Smith were the contractors who built what is now known as "Fish Hall."

In 1901 Carlisle Military Academy began its work and continued until 1913. J. M. Carlisle was the head of that school and is Carlisle Craven's grandfather.

After the financial failure of Carlisle Military Academy the property was leased to Dr. H. K. Taylor who started the Arlington Training School, being at its head for 3 years. At the close of the session in 1916, J. C. Dodson leased the Training School property and taught for 2 years. Then V. W. Grubbs, who was the father of Denton's C. I. A., conceived the idea of the legislature making a vocational school at Arlington. He was given expense money by Arlington citizens and went to Austin. After several months a bill was passed creating Grubb's Vocational College which provided the citizens donate 100 acres of land and all the Carlisle Military Academy property free of debt. It also required it be under the direction of A & M College. It took $23,000 to meet the bill's requirements, but it was raised with Dallas' help of $7,000 and Fort Worth's $6,000.

John Tarleton was also made part of the A & M system in that same bill.

One hundred acres of tillable land was purchased from J. P. Fielder for $10,000 and turned over to the college. Mr. L. Williams was at the head of the college until August 1, 1925.

"Since the name Grubbs Vocation College carried with it the idea of a school under private ownership and control, and since the word "vocational" seemed to limit the function of the school, a change in the name was made by the legislature to North Texas Junior Agriculture College on July 4, 192?. After the resignation of Dean Williams, Dean Davis was put in charge of N.T.A.C., which has grown faster in number of students than any college in Texas."
